ESSANAY NEWS.

The following letter was recently received by the Essanay Film Manufacturing Co., from N. E. Chaney, manager of the Orpheum Theatre at Hillsboro, Ohio.

"I wish to congratulate you on the production of such good comedies as 'Alkali Ike's Pants,' from a financial standpoint to the exhibitor. I don't know whether it was on account of its being a good comedy or my giving it a little more publicity than your other comedies that I have had or not, at any rate, I broke my records for attendance with this picture, and I have been in the business nearly five years. Here is the way I advertised it in addition to programs and newspapers. I secured several old pairs of trousers, and placarded them as follows: 'Alkali Ike's Pants,' and hung them in prominent parts of the city. People would cross the street, regardless of crossings, to see what it meant. It did the work. It surely is a great comedy, and if a live exhibitor can't get the money with it, he is to blame himself."

Letters like this from exhibitors show that they are wide awake and are up to the present day methods of advertising. If more exhibitors would take more pains with their publicity the box office receipts would be larger.

Mr. Mackley and a dozen members of the Essanay Western Stock Co. have taken possession of the Hollywood branch studio. Among those who constitute company No. 2 at Hollywood are: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mackley, True Boardman, Baby Audrey, Hanna, J. Hanna, David Kirkland, Camera-man Wm. Evans, Stage Carpenter Benjamin Lee, Electrician Al. Bunderick, Property Man W. A. Russell, Scenic Artists Earl Pearson and Louis Morissetti. Mr. Anderson will keep company No. 1 at Niles, which is the Essanay Company's Western division headquarters. Weather permitting, many more "Broncho Billy" pictures and interesting dramas will be produced before Spring.

JULIAN ELTINGE and a party of friends playing at the Columbia Theatre, in San Francisco, motored to Niles a few days ago and were the guests of G. M. Anderson. They watched "Broncho Billy" win a filled sack of "gold" at cards and Brinsley Shaw make love to the fair Bessie. Then out into the country they went with members of the Essanay Co.

MONOPOL TO PRODUCE TWO FEATURES A WEEK.

After long preparations S. E. V. Taylor, who, with Marion Leonard and other members of the Monopol Film Co., left New York for Los Angeles Sunday morning, Nov. 24, has secured the rights to about thirty books and plays by both American and foreign authors, out of which number he will select about a dozen which he will produce during the coming Winter. Mechanicians have been busy for the past month in building an elaborate revolving stage patented exactly as the stage of the new Century Theatre in New York City, which permits of three complete stage settings at one time, and immediately after photographing one scene the stage is turned and the company proceed without delay on the next scene.

Many companies have been bidding for the services of Marion Leonard, and the Monopol Film Co. is fortunate in having secured the services of this famous photoplayer.

A complete scenic equipment for the first production, the name of which is withheld for the present, was taken from New York to Los Angeles on the same train with the company, so that little time will be wasted before the first production is under way in the new studio. In fact, Mr. Taylor anticipates having his first picture ready for the public about the middle of December. It is the aim of the Monopol Co. to produce a three reel feature production every two weeks.

KINEMACOLOR NEWS.

On the afternoon of Monday, Nov. 23, at the Belasco Theatre, Washington, President Taft, with members of his family and official staff, saw the first showing of the great motion picture series, "Panama, the Earth Divided, the World United," all caught by the Kinemacolor camera.

On Friday afternoon, 29, the exhibition was repeated at a special meeting of the National Geographic Society, at their official home in Washington, over one thousand members comprising the gathering.

Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, of the United States Navy, spoke while the motion color pictures were on the screen, and explained some of the possibilities of the Isthmian project from a naval viewpoint.

"The commercial and economic results of the opening of the canal are like a dynamite mine—almost as uncertain, just as dangerous," he said. "There is no doubt that from the opening, next August, the canal will be patronized, and a decade will see it on a paying basis."

"It will unify the United States and make possible a more complete plan of coast defense than she has ever enjoyed, but the way for quick communication must be given other nations, too. The adequate fortification of the zone is not only a matter of policy, but a debt of honor by the nation to her people, for the protection of their lives and liberty."

Kinemacolor, the motion picture which has captured the colors of nature, passes from triumph to triumph. It absolutely enthralled the distinguished audience with an astounding pictorial review of the making of the Panama Canal. The famous "Durbar" pictures showed a triumph of organized pomp. These revealed a no less marvelous triumph of organized and supremely intelligent labor. The one spectacle was grand in its dignity, color and historic associations; the latest, grand in its mighty overcoming of tremendous difficulties. The first appeared to a love of power and display. The records of the supreme feat of engineering almost completed on the Isthmus must appeal to all mankind, and is really the finer and most inspiring. It was followed with great interest, and received quite frequent outbursts of irrepressible applause.

The series of pictures occupied nearly two hours, and covered the entire fifty miles of the canal with all the marvelous and gigantic workings of this greatest constructive work of all time. The pictures showed the sinking of the huge caissons, the blowing up of the dyke in the Mindi Cut by exploding twelve tons of dynamite, the working of the huge dredges scooping up tons of rock and soil and carrying them away as easily as a child would lift and carry away an apple. It is all only comparable to a glimpse of the construction of the Pyramids of Pharaoh's time.

By this new process the work that will change history has all been perpetuated so that future generations may use the constructions of the great tunnels and mountains of concrete, which will be a factor in commerce for centuries.

Other color films showed the conveyance of thousands of tons of material along cables through the air; the towering lock walls and gates and deep gorges that set one thinking of the Grand Canyon of Arizona; the removal of immemorial cliffs by a terrific stream of water directed against them from a gigantic hose—and a thousand other sights in this tremendous pageant of man's indomitable will.

For years this extraordinary work of joining the Atlantic and the Pacific halfway down the American Continent has been in progress, and we have all heard from time to time of its magnitude, its splendor and its tragedy. Here, at last, we can see it. One result of that experience will be a deepened realization and admiration of the courage, tenacity and skill which our countrymen have thrown into the work.

HARDIN HEAD OF NEW YORK STUDIO.

John Hardin, formerly connected with the Chicago office of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., and recently associated with John Peizer, at the Orange, N. J., office, is now assistant manager of the Edison Studio in New York. Horace G. Plimpton, manager of negative production, found that the increasing amount of detail work incidental to the releasing of five reels weekly made the appointment of an assistant imperative. Mr. Hardin's thorough knowledge of the film business singled him out as being ideally suited to the position, and he accordingly took up his new duties Nov. 25.

PICTURES FROM DIRIGIBLE BALLOON.

E. M. Newman, who is delivering a series of travel talks on all the important countries visited by tourists in Europe, is showing a wonderful motion picture in his travel talk on "Rural France."

Through the courtesy of the French government Mr. Newman and his motion picture staff were taken up in a dirigible balloon, and motion pictures of the chateau district were taken from above. This is without question the finest motion picture ever shown. Mr. Newman is also showing many other wonderful pictures with his travel talks this season.

OPENS EUROPEAN BRANCH.

B. E. Clements, who some time ago inaugurated the Big C. Features office in the Marquette Building, Chicago, has recently opened a European branch which is known as the Big A. Features, with J. D. Goldgraber in charge.

MORRIS SHORE has begun the erection of a one story moving picture house, 48 by 55 feet, on the South side of Woodland Avenue, East of Sixty-fourth Street, Philadelphia. The cost will be $10,000. The seating capacity will be 500.

A STRIP of film in the moving picture booth at the Manhattan Theatre, Broadway and Thirty-first Street, caught fire afternoon of Nov. 28. The operator, knowing that the walls of the booth were of asbestos, threw the burning film on the floor. He prepared to put another reel into the machine to replace "Hunting Game in a Big City," which was fast becoming ashes. The audience wondered a little at the delay, but did not worry. The motion picture exhibitors' League of America, of Columbus, O., recently wrote Francis X. Bushman requested him to lead the grand march on Dec. 12, at their first annual reception to be held at Memorial Hall. The dance is to be given by Local No. 4. Mr. Bushman replied with a letter stating that he is only too pleased to attend. This will be one of the prominent events in the social realm of motion picture exhibitors.

FILMS REVIEWED.

"The Stolen Symphony" (Lubin).

Released Nov. 25.

There is much more visible interest to the Lubin Company's pictures when Arthur Johnson appears in the productions. Not that he is minus sufficient aid by his supporting casts, but he has a gifted mannerism about his every move and expression which makes his audience admire any subject he appears in.

"The Stolen Symphony" is in two parts, and it is a master production from beginning to end. It is portrayed by competent actors, with Mr. Johnson doing the lion's share of the work, and he has yet to surpass the acting he did in making this sentimental story wonderfully successful in its entirety.

It tells of how Paul Romig, a poor young composer (Arthur Johnson) was robbed of a beautiful symphony he had composed when he placed it in the hands of Jaretsky, a noted musician, who saw at a glance that he had found a masterpiece.

Adjoining the poor composer's cheap boarding quarters was Helen Landis, a young woman of good family, but left penniless at the death of her father. She was Paul's friend, and had listened to the strains of the symphony during his hours of labor at the keys, and had learned to know that it was as wonderful as its composer. She loved him, and he her.

But Helen was called away from him when a rich aunt learned of her destitute circumstances, and sent for her to come and live with her.

In the mean time the famous musician, who found he had discovered something more wonderful than what he had accomplished himself, copied the symphony, burned Paul's manuscript, and amazed the hearers of the wonderful tune.

Paul hears, and when he claims he wrote the piece, he is arrested and later put into an asylum as being unsound of mind.

But the girl also hears the familiar tune, and knowing its rightful composer is her lover, she visits the asylum with her aunt, and Paul is released.

The aunt planning a Waterloo for the now noted musician, who had won greater fame with Paul's music, arranges with him to give a musicale in her home.

While Jaretsky is playing the symphony, Paul appears, destroys the manuscript and demands the impostor to play the symphony. Of course he cannot, and he acknowledges Paul a wonderful genius.

The days of Paul's end when Paul sells the masterpiece for a fortune, and is accepted by Helen, whose efforts had won for him fame and happiness.

The picture is replete with thrilling situations, and is commendably set throughout.

"The Totville Eye" (Edison).

Released Nov. 27.

John Adams, editor of a country newspaper, does not favor modern journalism, while old Scotty, his assistant, believes in printing real news. So when the crabbed old editor is suddenly called out of town, Scotty, Scotty's printer's devil, accidentally drops the form of the first page of The Totville Eye, and Scotty decides to print a new page with "real" news.

Sammy is nominated to go out and gather the village news. He does, and we see him picking up his special stories; first, the accidental manner in which the village parson becomes intoxicated when his soft drink is "loaded" with a bit of whiskey in the village saloon, and how he was requested to resign when even in that condition by a few of his congregation. Then Sammy makes note of a quarrel between the village's most popular couple, who are about to be married, and his third story tells of how a tight-fisted old landlord threatens to evict a poor widow who is unable to pay her rent.

The paper is printed and the next day Editor Adams is fearing half a dozen libel suits when each of the papers concerned enter his office and surprise him by expressing themselves as grateful to him for the lesson it has taught each. The young couple are reunited, the landlord allows the widow to remain in her rooms, and, best of all, the story explaining how the minister had accidentally become intoxicated clears him of guilt and his congregation recall their request that he resign.

Walter Edwin, in the role of the old type-setter, and little Yale Ross, as Sammy, make this film a very amusing subject.

The other characters were all good, and the picture's situations well chosen.

"Mr. Hubby's Wife" (Essanay).

Released Nov. 26.

The picture opens in the office of Mr. Hubby, where his attempt to flirt with his pretty stenographer is disastrous—and she demands her wages and leaves.

He phones for a "peach" and is soon making love to her when his wife enters the office and sends the "dasher" flying, and tells Hubby she will hire his next stenographer, and, having previously planned with her friend, Mrs. Briggs, the latter is installed as Hubby's typewriter. Wifey leaves town, so Hubby thinks, but later she takes the place of Mrs. Briggs in corresponding old maid make-up, and when Mr. Hubby dictates a letter making an appointment with Cassie, the former stenographer, his wife removes her disguise and he is the recipient of a warm mauling until he begs forgiveness.

A comedy that is replete with funny situations. The story is consistently told, and, with excellent people, the production is commendable.

"Roped In" (Selig).

Released Nov. 26.

Jim Harris, tiring of the rough cowboy life, answers a matrimonial advertisement, and, although made fun of by the boys at first, he has the laugh to himself when the fair lady's picture arrives. He loses no time in sending her necessary transportation money and dons his best "duds" to receive her.

The fair Cynthia arrives, but she is far from corresponding with the photo, and poor Jim is about heartbroken, and she adds to his discomfort in showers of loving caresses.

The boys plan to help Jim by abducting him from his "matrimonial favor," but

Cynthia thwarts their efforts at the point of a gun. At last Jim finds an opening to freedom once more when he discovers the cook has a trap full of live mice. He induces the cook to set them free in Cynthia's room, with the result that she flees from the ranch and forfeits all claims to Jim.

A speedy, laughable Western comedy. Nuf sed.

"The Water Right War" (Kalem).

Released Nov. 26.

Greuff and Steve, two ranchers, quarrel over the water rights of their ranches. One day Mabel, Greuff's daughter, is saved by Steve from a terrible accident, when her horse runs away, and the couple become fast friends. Later Steve attempts to monopolize the water rights and is arrested by old Greuff for trespassing.

Old Greuff is the town's marshal, and, after locking Steve in the jail, he retires. But Mabel secures the keys, frees her sweetheart, and when father awakens next morning, he finds a note stating that Steve preferred Mabel to the old stream, and so they eloped. They are married and, upon returning home, Greuff considers it a wise plan to forgive them, now that there is a combination of interests.

A convincing story, with the three leading characters pleasingly portrayed. There is a laugh at the right moment.

"The Sheriff's Brother" (Pathe).

Released Nov. 27.

It is a story of brotherly love. Jim is county sheriff and Dan, his brother, is a member of a band of notorious cattle rustlers. Jim believes his sweetheart also loves Dan, but this does not lead him to seek the arrest of his own flesh and blood. Instead he resigns as sheriff, leads the posse and allows Dan to escape. But before the brother makes his getaway he thrusts a note he had received from "the girl" into Jim's hand, which, when read by Jim, has informed Dan that she loves his brother, and upon returning to the county commissioner's office Jim finds her waiting his proposal of marriage.

A good Western drama that furnishes admirable entertainment. Fine acting adds to the subject's success.

NEW CINCINNATI HOUSES.

Ohio State National Guard Wants

Pictures to Aid Enlistment.

The Broadway Amusement Co. is to build a $15,000 moving picture and vaudeville theatre, at 404-06 East Pearl Street. A permit to raze the buildings has been granted by Cincinnati's Building Commissioner.

The Ohio State National Guard Association in Cincinnati at Cincinnati, fellows the display of moving pictures of military encampments and manoeuvres as an incentive to encourage enlistment in the State militia.

J. M. Jackson, of the film firm of McMahon & Jackson, was one of the forty-two who trod the hot sands with the November caravan to Mexico, and is now one of Syrian Temple's Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

ALHAMBRA put on "The Garden of Allah" and drew great crowds.

JOE MURPHY'S "KERRY GOW" is having quite a run. It has been seen at Lubin's, Family and Heuck's.

THE BOSTON THEATRE is to be built at Vine and Elder, for motion pictures.

The Kinemacolor Co. of America has established a Cincinnati branch on East Fourth Street, and starts out with two floors.

The Gayety has passed into new hands, and will be used largely for the exploitation of real Kinemacolor pictures. The location is ideal, right on Fountain Square.

The Colonial is featuring films in which Herschel Mayall is seen in stellar roles.

HENCEFORTH Londoners who wish to witness "mixed bathing" must go to the seashore. These scenes will be depleted no longer in moving picture shows. This announcement, along with other prohibitions, heralds the return of G. A. Redford to the office of public censor. This time, however, he will confine his activities to judging the propriety of moving picture films. His prohibition of "mixed bathing" is ridiculed. One protestant points out that it is a splendid example of inconsistency in a country which permits its bathers to appear on the beach in costumes which would cause the immediate arrest of their wearers in any part of the United States. Mr. Redford's defense probably would be that he has no control over the bathers themselves.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., Nov. 28.—An explosion in a moving picture show in the village of Coloma, a few miles South of South Bend, last night, caused the destruction of a block of buildings. Loss, $25,000. Four women were hurt in the rush to escape. Joe Humphrey, operator, was seriously burned.

SCANTON, PA.—The Towns and Cities Film Co. has a set of film men in this city taking pictures of Scanton's manufacturing, educational, social and civic activities. The pictures taken by this company will be exhibited in a local hall for a few weeks, and will later be sent around the circuit. The International Film Co. is also taking pictures in this city this week. They sent a troupe of actors and actresses of some note here to take advantage of staging a drama here to take advantage of the settling of the anthracite coal regions.

For such a film being ideal in the local coal mines. The company purchased a house in Johnson's Patch, which was burned in connection with the drama; the local police force also posed for the camera company, and the city was given quite a little distinction by the two films taken, as they will be shown throughout the country.

The new Glen Theatre, at Glen Cove, L. I., N. Y., was opened Nov. 30, with vaudeville and pictures. Patrick F. McMahon is the manager. The house seats 1,000, and is two stories high, built of granite and stone. The machine room is in a separate structure.

MAURICE COSTELLO's automobile, driven by himself, collided with a grocery wagon at Church and Ocean avenues, Brooklyn, Nov. 30, right in front of J. S. Blackston's home. Mr. Costello was not injured, but the wagon driver was taken to the Kings County Hospital, badly shaken up.

THE Doric Amusement Corporation has been formed by Alfred Frankenthal, Benjamin Baruch and Sylvan Bier.

THE Habit Amusement Co. has been incorporated by Jacob Bejer, Barbara Beler and J. A. McKenzie.

NEW MOVING PICTURE ORDINANCE.

At the request of the moving picture board of censors, Ordinance No. 11, A. Mason, of the supervisor's office of San Francisco, Cal., has prepared a new ordinance for the regulation of the display of moving picture films in that city, which will be presented to the board for passage after it has been approved by the police committee. Of two important features in the bill not contained in the present ordinance, which is said to be ineffective, one provides for a license charge of $1 for each film displayed or proposed to be displayed. The purpose of the tax is to create a fund to cover the expense of having actual exhibitions for the benefit of the censorship board of all films proposed to be shown, of that their merits and demerits may be better observed and understood. Under the present ordinance the films themselves are examined by the censors, who find it difficult at times to note all the features of the pictures owing to the extremely small size. This requirement of actual exhibitions of films submitted for approval is the second important feature in the new ordinance.

NEW ERA RETAINS RUBINSTEIN.

The educational phase of moving pictures is receiving impetus these days, and a new concern to enter this branch is the New Era Motion Picture Plan, with offices at 145 West Forty-fifth Street, New York City.

This concern has retained in a high executive position, Leon J. Rubenstein, who for the past year has successfully specialized in national subjects. Mr. Rubenstein is well remembered as the editor of the Film Index and Letter Film Reports, being a recognized pioneer of motion picture publicity.

His close association with both Patents Company and Independent Manufacturers has won him a good name in film circles. In the course of his educational work he had drawn some important correspondence from the U. S. Government, among the most notable ones being the recent film release which showed the manufacture of paper money at Washington.

Among the activities in which Mr. Rubenstein is working now is what he terms "sensational educational." He is preparing for release a series of pictures on a variety of startling themes, each of which will either champion or vivify some question of the hour.

The American Film Mfg. Co. announces the addition of W. Wallace Reid to its force of producers at Santa Barbara. He brings with him a competent company, some of whom have before been associated with him at the Kalem Western studio, which he leaves to engage for the American Vitaphone.

Lillian Christy, ingenue of Vitaphone, Kalem and Bison fame, is the latest acquisition to the ranks of the well known American players. Miss Christy will play ingenue leads in the new company just formed at the Santa Barbara studios. Miss Christy comes to the American with every favorable promise. Chet Withey is another splendid addition to its lists of stars. Mr. Withey is a character man of reputation, and joins the "Flying A" interests at Santa Barbara with every promise of adding his long string of successes.

The temporary closing of the Chicago studio of the American Film Mfg. Co. means an extra California picture each week to take the place of the weekly subject heretofore made in Chicago.

"PILGRIM'S PROGRESS" AT CARNEGIE HALL.

On Friday evening, Dec. 13, at Carnegie Hall, New York, the Symphony Photo Drama will present the "Life of John Bunyan" and "Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress," through a process of photo plastic effect and natural color, invented by F. W. Hochstetter, musically interpreted by the Russian Symphony Orchestra (Modest Althaus, director).

This combination was recently brought about by F. W. Hochstetter and Modest Althaus, combining music and drama in photo plastic effect with natural color and character. Philosophical in its treatment, and classic in its portrayal, F. W. Hochstetter, after sixteen years of labor, has accomplished startling achievements in the realm of photography. Mr. Hochstetter produces plastic figures, luminous lights, stereoscopic effects and natural colors.

A foreign business man informs an American consular officer that he would like to get in touch with American manufacturers of cinematograph films. He desires to secure the agency for these companies in Eastern Russia and Western Siberia. Correspondence may be in English or German. Address the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C. (File No. 9959).

EPSTEIN RETURNS TO TEXAS.

William Epstein, of San Antonio, Tex., who recently spent ten days in New York, investigating the feature game, has returned to Texas.

M. P. DECISION.

On Dec. 2, the Court of Appeals, Washington, D. C., held that Thomas A. Edison is not the inventor of the motion picture film, and that his patent rights are invalid, and his assignee is not entitled to damages for infringement. Previous decisions were reversed. Mr. Edison, the Court of Appeals said, merely solved camera apparatus problems.

The action was brought against the Chicago Film Co., for alleged infringement on the Edison patent, and for an injunction against its further infringement.

In giving the court's decision Chief Justice Shepard said: "The flexible, transparent, translucent tape-like film prepared for taking photographs was neither discovered nor produced by Edison. It was improved and brought to its present state of perfection by Eastman. When exhibited to Edison he seized upon it as the thing needed to make his camera apparatus a complete commercial success."

"We do not dissent from the proposition that Mr. Edison solved the problems of the motion picture art with great ingenuity and skill, but the problems that he solved were in the camera apparatus wherein his true claim to invention lies. He did not supply the 'fundamentals of the film' that is used in the art as practised today. The long, plant, translucent, celluloid film, with the sensitized surface, was the invention of others."

EXPOSITION COMMITTEE OPENS OFFICES IN THE GERMAN BANK BUILDING.

The first big meeting of the committee who will have charge of the first international exposition of the motion picture art, which will be held in conjunction with the third annual convention of the new Grand Central Palace, beginning the 7th of next July, was held at the committee headquarters on the second floor of the German Bank Building. These offices were opened on Friday, and are adequately equipped. Frank E. Samuels, secretary of the committee, will be manager.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Tichenor, at 11.15 A. M., all members being present excepting Messrs. Ascher and Anson, of the advisory committee. It was decided to add one new member to the general committee, and six to the advisory. This suggestion was made by President Neff, of the M. P. E. L. of Am., whose idea it was to have the up State branches of the league represented in the committee. Therefore B. E. Cornell, of Syracuse, was appointed to the general committee, and Messrs. R. M. Davidson, of Binghamton; G. F. Wright, of Albany; William Dorene, of Ulster; A. N. Wolf, of Rochester; Mr. Day, of Auburn, and R. C. Whitten, of New York, to the advisory committee.

A ruling was passed that any member of either committee absent from three consecutive meetings should be dropped and his successor appointed by the chairman. Up State members are excepted in this ruling.

A copy of the prospectus and the initial contract will be mailed shortly to all newspapers and journals pertaining to the motion picture industry.

Even at so early a date many manufacturers have inquired regarding rates. Preferred position will be sold at $2 per square foot, and the remainder at $1.50.

Committees have been appointed to see the largest manufacturers immediately.

'MILESTONES' MINISTERS' MATINEE.

A private matinee of "Milestones" was given at the Liberty Theatre Monday afternoon, Dec. 2, to which representative clergy of the various denominations of this city had been invited. When the curtain rose on the first act there was not a vacant seat in the house, and never has "Milestones" been played to a more appreciative audience. The engaging story of the play appealed, but so too did the bright lines and humorous situations. There were many curtain calls for the English actors after each act, and when the play was over the applause continued until Leslie Faber, who plays the role of John Rhead, stepped forward and expressed the thanks of the company and management for the cordial reception that "Milestones" had received from the clergy.

'HINDLE WAKES' CO. ARRIVE.

The English company, which is to play "Hindle Wakes," under the direction of William A. Brady, arrived Saturday, Nov. 30, on the Celtic, of the White Star Line. The members of the company are: Dulcie Conroy, Kathleen MacPherson, Alice Chaplin, Alice O'Day, Herbert Lomas, James C. Taylor, Charles F. Lloyd, Roland Young, and Emilie Polini. "Hindle Wakes" will succeed "Ready Money" at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, opening Dec. 9.

"THE ROAD TO ARCADY."

Berkeley (Robert Campbell, mgr.)—On Monday night, Nov. 25, under the auspices of the National Federation of Theatre Clubs, Sydney Rosenfeld produced The Road to Arcady, a four act comedy, by Edith Sessions Tupper, with this cast:

Oliver Gerard.....Frank Weston
Robert Gerard.....Albert Latscha
Benson Churchill.....Wilson Hummel
John Hamilton.....Franklin Ritchie
The Rev. Wm. Burnham.....L. Blanden
Henry Gerard.....Charles Ellis
Sara.....Helen Tracey
Antoinette Gerard.....Lily Cahill
Sue Denimson.....Hilda Keenan
Mary Hamilton.....Ida Waterman
Lisette.....Leona Ball

The plot is not new, having been used in numerous works, short plays, etc. The story tells of a family, consisting of father, mother, daughter, and son, and their friends. The father is a fairly well-to-do banker, who thinks of nothing but business. The son is a young fellow who, up to the present time, has lived only to enjoy himself. The mother, who is insanely anxious for millions, and to be a recognized leader of society. The daughter is quite pretty, and abhors a multi-millionaire who would marry her. The mother, to gain her wishes, tells her daughter that her father is a defaulter, and that she must marry this man to save his name. The girl at first refuses to be bartered, but finally gives a reluctant consent, all the time thinking of a young architect, whom she has seen but twice, but whom she loves, and of Arcady, which, as pictured by Mr. Tupper, is the land of happiness and love. It looks as if the wedding would take place, but the son, with the help of his sister's girl friend, gets on the job and proves his mother has lied. Then there is a happy wedding in the architect's home, where his mother, a sweet old Quakeress, gives the girl a warm welcome.

Lily Cahill, who, we understand, is a newcomer to our city, played the part of Antoinette, the daughter, very creditably. Hilda Keenan, as her friend, Sue Denimson, also did good work.

Franklin Ritchie did not seem to get all possible out of the role of John Hamilton, the young architect.

Albert Latscha, as the son, had numerous opportunities for good work but did not grasp them.

Wilson Hummel gave a very good portrayal of the rich old man, who thinks money can buy anything.

Helen Tracy, as the heartless, selfish mother, gave a creditable performance. The other roles were well handled.

The play itself is entertaining, and the reception tendered it should encourage its author to further endeavors.

At the Friday night performance, during the intermission between the third and fourth acts, Sydney Rosenfeld appeared before the curtain, and in a speech in which he many times bowed to the audience, he told of the hopes and aims of the National Federation of Theatre Clubs. Among other things Mr. Rosenfeld said the Federation would produce a new play by an unknown creator, with unknown talent in many of the roles, every four to six weeks. He said that the membership of the Federation had grown from 40 to 1,100 in less than a year, and that one of its main objects was to bring more literary talent into the amusement game and to help to keep it up to a high standard.

Speaking of "The Road to Arcady," he said it had been acted in its entirety in New York, and that if he had done such a thing it appeared to have been appreciated. He praised Mrs. Tupper's play, and closed by saying he had minimized his efforts in changing copy.

The second week began Dec. 2. Doc.

GREELEY SQUARE THEATRE.
(JULIUS BERNSTEIN, MGR.)

The bill for Nov. 28-30 contained eight entertaining acts and played to crowded houses.

Harry Mayo opened with "Sumurun," in his deep bass voice, and was then joined by a young lady singer in an orchestra seat, who sang "Oh, What a Beautiful Dream."

Then came "Savoying My Kisses for Some One," both finishing on the same note. The girl is a sweet singer and good looker.

The Four Vectors are pony acrobats of merit, who, in red costumes, went through a series of top-mounting, slip-unders and overs, hand-to-hand leaps, with just a little comedy on the side, with good success.

Arsino opened in one as a sailor with some rope climbing and posing. Then on the full stage he used his trapeze apparatus to advantage, finishing on a trap suspended by steel bars in a great swing.

The Creighton Brothers, as squeaky voiced rubes, sang and talked. They murdered a melody on a violin and horn, and contributed a grotesque song and dance for a finish. A rural street scene would help the act, as the rubes are out of place in a scene showing Twenty-second Street and Sixth Avenue.

Herl Whiteides was there as usual with her own singing, introducing the French pick, then the Dutch, next the levee scene, with all four little "coons" in action. The Tommy dances and the Scotch bits with the Picks in funny make-up, made a hit. Miss Whiteides showed several pretty gowns, and looked charming as ever.

John J. Doyle and company scored again in their police sketch, wherein an sloping young husband captured a dangerous criminal who exchanged satchels, after the wife had been put through the third degree on suspicion of being the crook's accomplice.

Joie and Willie Barrows, as the actress and the lively bell boy, sang, danced and developed funny situations with good result. Their footwork is clever, and they have lost none of their cleverness acquired as the Barrows Children. How these kids do grow!

Jack Rose came on with a lot of gesticulation, shrugs and dashes about the stage, sang "Row, Row, Row," then, donning a little bonnet and wearing a tiny muff, he imitated Marie Dressler singing "Heaven Will Protect the Working Girl." For a finish he told a short story.

Irving Place Theatre (Dr. M. Baumfeld, mgr.)—The premier of Asst. Lieutenant ("The Exchange Lieutenant"), a three act comedy, may well be called a "lost evening," as the whole plot of the play is hardly worth mentioning, and it is much better adapted for presentation by an amateur theatrical club than by regular actors. Herr Stockel played well, as always, in a rather ungrateful part of the Lieutenant, while Frau Rub-Foerster found opportunity to show that she is well able to take care of larger parts than those generally entrusted to her.

Metropolitan Opera House—Adeline Genee opened Tuesday matinee, 2. Miss Genee is assisted in her dances by Volin, a ballet and symphony orchestra conducted by Nahon Franko.

Savoy (Rosenberg Bros. mgrs.)—Motion pictures in which leading stars appear is the attraction at this house.

WALLACK'S (Charles Burnham, mgr.)—

The Paper Chase, a comedy in four acts, by Louis N. Parker. Produced by the Liebler Co. on Monday, Nov. 25, with this cast:

Duke of Richelieu.....Edgar Kent
Marquis of Belange.....Julian L'Estrange
Marquis of Joyeuse.....Dallas Anderson
Lavoigne.....Geoffrey Stein
Gaspard.....Charles Francis

First Assistant.....Mary Christian
Second Assistant.....Maude Noel

Louis N. Parker, who gave us "Disraeli" and "Pomander Walk," has furnished Mme. Simone with her vehicle this season. It is "The Paper Chase," an amusing and delicate comedy founded upon Henry Mountjoy's novel, "The Minister of Police." The action of the play takes place in 1780 in the Palace of Versailles. The play and novel both introduce personages who played important roles in the history of France during that period. The events represented, however, have no historical record. The story, charmingly written, is interesting, but slow in its unfolding. The costumes are accurately reproduced, and the furniture is of the time. Just before the French Revolution the play only scored a mild form of success. "The Minister of Police" has had a large sale and therefore the story of Mr. Mountjoy's novel is so well known that it is unnecessary to give a lengthy description of the play. "The Paper Chase" is a comedy in which a young and beautiful baroness, whose loyalty to her queen (Marie Antoinette) has caused her to follow the queen from Vienna for the purpose of extricating her from the work of intrigue that a faction of the French court, headed by the Duke of Richelieu, has wound about her. All of the plans to bring disgrace upon the queen are written in a drama in which the duke and his spies are trying to recover from Bettina, who stole it from the duke. A battle of wits ensues, in which Bettina outwits them all.

The role of Bettina gives Mme. Simone, who is in English, little opportunity to show her talent. In fact, she is quite at home in light comedy as she is in the emotional drama. She is an artist to her finger tips. It is always a pleasure to watch her.

The role of Marquis of Belange was capably acted by Julian L'Estrange.

"The Paper Chase" served to bring back to the stage that charming and clever actress, Pauline Frederick, who handled her role, that of the Marchioness of Joyeuse, a jealous woman, with skill.

Charles Francis, as Gaspard, gave a capital performance, and made his small role stand out conspicuously.

Edgar Kent, as the old Duke of Richelieu, was interesting. The remainder of the cast played their roles (mostly small ones) in excellent manner.

BELASCO WINS.

Judge Holt, on Nov. 30, in the United States District Court, New York City, rendered his decision in favor of David Belasco and William C. de Mille, in the plagiarism suit brought against him by Abraham Goldknopf, in which Goldknopf charged them with having stolen the idea of "The Woman" from a play submitted by him some two years prior, entitled "Tainted Philanthropy."

Goldknopf's original counsel was William Klein, and afterwards Adolph Freyer was substituted. Judge Dittenhoefer appeared for Mr. Belasco, and Max D. Josephson for Mr. de Mille. After part of the testimony had been taken, it was stipulated that the case should be decided upon the court reading the two manuscripts and then witnessing a production of the two plays, which Mr. Belasco agreed to give. This proposition was accepted and accepted by Judge Holt.

The manuscripts were submitted to him, and afterwards, on Tuesday, Nov. 26, a production of both plays was given at the Belasco Theatre. "The Woman" was produced in the morning, and "Tainted Philanthropy" in the afternoon.

Judge Holt's opinion is as follows:

"This suit is brought to test the infringement of a copyright. The complainant is the author of a play called 'Tainted Philanthropy.' The defendant, de Mille, is the author and the defendant, Belasco, the producer of a play called 'The Woman.' The complainant charges that the defendant's play infringed the copyright of the complainant's play.

The parties stipulated in open court that the evidence in the case consisted of manuscript copies of the play to be furnished to and read by the court, and a representation of the plays to be given by the defendants. Such representations have been given, both by the complainant and the defendant, and the court has heard the evidence.

The sole question to be decided is whether the play called 'The Woman' infringes the copyright of the play called 'Tainted Philanthropy.' In my opinion the proof wholly fails to establish the charge. There is nothing to prove or to suggest such a comparison of the two plays, that 'The Woman' was copied from 'Tainted Philanthropy,' or that any part of the one was taken from any part of the other. There is nothing to indicate that either the words or the ideas or the plot of the defendant's play was suggested by complainant's play. The two plays, in my opinion, are wholly dissimilar, and I see no ground whatever for the charge that one infringed the copyright of the other in any particular. There should be a decree for the defendants, dismissing the bill on the merits, with costs."

Immediately following Judge Holt's decision in the plagiarism suit of Abraham Goldknopf against David Belasco, Mr. Belasco made public the following communication from the Society of American Dramatists and Composers:

"New York, Nov. 27, 1912.

"David Belasco, Esq.,

"Dear Mr. Belasco—At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Society of American Dramatists, held immediately after witnessing the performance of 'The Woman' and 'Tainted Philanthropy,' a resolution was passed, congratulating and thanking you for your splendid work in behalf of the dramatists of America in having called the attention of the public and the law to the efforts of irresponsible writers and producers against authors and composers.

We are of the opinion that these strike suits, having no basis or ground for legal action, are a great hardship to the professional dramatists, and the attention of the Bar Association should be called to this sharp practice and unwarranted attack on the dramatist's name and pocket.

Yours most sincerely,

(Signed) CHARLES KLEIN, Secretary."

"TAINTED PHILANTHROPY."

"Tainted Philanthropy." Abraham Goldknopf's play, from which its author claimed "The Woman," proved to be anything but a real play. Given as it was by Mr. Belasco on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 26, by a company of sterling players, it was produced under the most favorable auspices. But its production was a veritable boomerang to its author.

Neither in plot, conception, construction, lines or ideas does it in any way resemble Mr. de Mille's capital play. The one like-ness it bears to "The Woman" is that it was produced by and under the direction of Mr. Belasco. This, in itself, is an honor, and a condition could Mr. Goldknopf have hoped to see his "play" on the stage, he can console himself with the fact that it has at least had one production, which is more than many other would-be dramatists can boast.

The incoherency of the "plot" of "Tainted Philanthropy" makes a well defined story well impossible, but as near as the writer could make out it ran something like this: Grace Dalton, the daughter of an impecunious widow, is engaged to Theodore Thompson, who, having lost his all in Wall Street, determines to disgust his fiancée to the point of breaking the engagement, and marry Bird, an orphan girl, who he doesn't love her, oh, my, no! He loves her all right, but, as he has lost all his money and cannot make any more because Jack Bird has a corner on the money market, he'll just disgust her. Her mother determines to marry Jack Bird and prinks herself for this purpose, because, she says, she must be able to "work" Mr. Bird for a few paltry thousands and pay up the mortgage which is due.

When Mr. Bird arrives, however, he ignores the widow and "shines" up to the daughter in a most original, if uncouth, manner. The girl finally determines that she'll sacrifice herself by marrying Bird and thus enable her mother to live in affluence, and her grown-up, athletic brother to continue his college course. In the end, however, after Grace has attempted to stab herself, and also Bird, with a huge carving knife, she refuses, on the day set for the wedding, to marry Bird, and grows hysterical over the prostrate body of Theodore, who has fallen on the stage, either dead or drunk, which, the author does not make clear.

Mr. Bird, who has come to the conclusion that his secretary, John Watts, is responsible for his being "turned down" at the last moment, decides to devote the rest of his natural life, and decides that there is nothing left for him (Bird) to do but to devote himself to philanthropy. And here is where Watts gets his revenge, for he says "Tainted Philanthropy," and thus, by mere accident, he kills two birds with one stone, for he gives Mr. Goldknopf's "play" its name.

Mr. Watts has other words to say during the action of the play, chief of which are "nasty world," which the author makes him repeat in various stages of the play ten or a dozen times, but his real speech is "Tainted Philanthropy."

Holt, for whose benefit the unique performance was given so that he might pass judgment in the action brought against Mr. de Mille and Mr. Belasco, sat in one of the stage boxes, and the hearty laughter in which he indulged, in common with the rest of the audience, showed that there are times when even a judge can't resist his official dignity and enjoy the ludicrous.

The audience was one of the most remarkable that ever gathered in a theatre. Besides the critics, who were all present, there were many prominent lawyers and men of letters, and most of the leading American play-actors.

"The Woman" was given at 11 o'clock on the morning of the same day.

On Saturday, Nov. 30, Judge Holt handed down his decision in favor of Mr. Belasco, which appears on this page.

PROCTOR'S FIFTH AVENUE.

(GUS MCCUNE, MANAGER.)

Held over a second week on account of the remarkable success, Madame T. the musical soprano, had the wise idea of guessing the business during the engagement last week was "capacity" at each performance, and if Monday matinee, Dec. 2, is a sample of the business for the second week of her engagement, her two weeks will be record breaking. Whoever she is, she possesses a really remarkable voice, every note being true, the range being very high. The following repertoire of songs were given: Waltz from the opera, "Mitsillili;" aria from "Mignon," and "The Gay Butterfly," the last being her biggest success.

The company presented "Hogan, the Painter," which gives Leslie much opportunity for his slang spiel. The skit held attention from the start, and the success accorded him and his company was good.

Clever and versatile Pat Rooney and Marion Bent talked, sang and danced for fully twenty minutes and then had to make a speech of thanks, as usual.

The Behrens, the masters of harmony, played in their usual wonderful manner, carrying off one of the hits of the program. The female impersonator had them guessing throughout the entire performance.

Those Ebony Apollos, Swor and Mack, put over some of the most humorous talk that has been heard here. The dance which is introduced by Mack is a great piece of work, and brought him rounds of applause. The finish of their excellent performance, both doing a nonsensical dance, had the audience roaring with laughter.

Porter J. White and company were seen for the first time in "Scandal." (See New Acts.)

Garret performers may come and go, but Gus Van and Joe Schenck will stay with us for some time to come. Monday afternoon the boys put over one of the biggest hits ever recorded at this house. Actual counting, they took ten bows, and every one was a genuine one at that. Judging from the amount of applause when they left the stage, they could have taken as many more. Both boys are there with the singing voice, rendering several songs in harmonious tone. The comedy is also good and brought the desired results.

La Toy Brothers, two of the cleverest comedy acrobats in the business, performed some very remarkable and difficult feats with apparent ease. They were a big success.

The Lozano Troupe, six in number, were seen for the first time in an exhibition on the wire. (See New Acts.) Jack.

Harry (Henry B. Harris' Estate, mgrs.)—Marrs (Nov. 26, 1912). The production of Truth was produced here Tuesday evening, Dec. 3, with the following cast: Frank K. Cooper, Anne Meredith, Muriel Starr, Dan Collier, Violet Cooper, Alexander Frank, Walter Hampden, Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, Henry Mortimer, John Herbert, Richard Purden and William Evillie.

Thirty-ninth Street—Annie Russell began her fourth week Monday, 2, in "Much Ado About Nothing." "She Stoops to Conquer" will be the attraction for next week.

Maxine Elliott (Sam S. & Lee Shubert, Inc., mgrs.)—Hindle Wakes will be produced here Monday, Dec. 9.

Murray Hill (Fred Waldmann, mgr.)—Behman Show this week. Midnight Maidens follows.

Olympic (Maurice Kraus, mgr.)—Gay Masqueraders this week. Bowsy Burlesques follows.

Grand Opera House (R. J. Madden, mgr.)—The Quaker Girl opened an engagement Dec. 2, with the following company: Ina Claire, Peggy Lundeen, Arthur Klein, Ruth Lloyd, Lewis James, E. W. Martyn, A. W. Metcalfe, Nellie McHenry, Martin Cox, W. H. Burton, Eleanor Sheldon, May Vokes, May Allison, Roland Bottomley, Maudie Gay and Percival Knight. Next week, "A Scrape of the Pen."

Grand Opera House (R. J. Madden, mgr.)—The Quaker Girl opened a week's engagement here, 2, with Ina Claire, Percival Knight and May Vokes included in a big cast. "A Scrape of the Pen" week of 9.

Weber's—Beverly B. Dobbs' Alaska-Siberian motion pictures opened an indefinite engagement here Monday, Dec. 2.

FREAKS IN VAUDEVILLE.

There is seemingly no limit to the competition which the legitimate vaudeville performer is up against. Prizefighters and other characters who have had public notoriety are eagerly grabbed up by the enterprising manager and exploited on the vaudeville stage. Recently we have had a plethora of baseball players appearing in vaudeville. It does not matter whether these people have any stage talent; it does not matter what they say or do on the stage, the audience is only interested in seeing the man, just the same as they would look at some curious animal at the zoo. But these so-called performers get the money, and big money at that! Baseball players of prominence receive large salaries for their work on the diamond during the baseball season, and it is hardly fair to the vaudeville performers for them to butt into their business. Vaudeville players frequently spend a large amount of money and time in perfecting an act or sketch, while the baseball player for a few dollars can have a monologue or sketch written, and then break into a field in which they do not legitimately belong. This is not only unfair, but it is mean, for every baseball player booked in vaudeville supplants a legitimate performer, who is dependent upon his work for his living. It is difficult to solve this problem unless the ball players themselves can be made to see it in its proper light and keep out of the business. It may be that they have never given serious thought to the matter, and have never "put themselves in the other fellows' places" mentally.

DOUBLE MATINEE BILL

Two playlets, "The Poetasters of Ispahan," by Clifford Bax, and "Beauty and the Jacobin," by Booth Tarkington, were presented by Sam S. & Lee Shubert, Inc., under the stage direction of Maurice Elvey, at a special performance at William Collier's Comedy Theatre, New York, on Friday afternoon, Nov. 29. "The Poetasters of Ispahan" was presented with the following cast:

Hallaj, Maurice Elvey
Najibah, Sydney Paxton
Aladdin, Walter Creighton
Sullivan, Walter Kingsford
Gulshah, Virginia Pennington
Ibn Hassan, Charles Francis
Silvermoon, Elisabeth Risdon

This playlet, with its scene laid in a tent in the town of Ispahan, Persia, is in verse, and proved to be a very delightful and well constructed work. It tells the story of a rich jeweler, who announces that his daughter will wed the man who can compose the best poem. In order to keep paupers from the contest each man must have ten pieces of silver. A pastry cook, a seller of perfumes, a barber and a silk mercer enter the contest. Being all unable to write, they employ Hallaj, a public letter writer, to pen the rhymes.

The letter writer charges them so much silver that he is, also, enabled to become a candidate for the young woman. He spoils their poems and writes one for himself, which wins the girl and a pot of gold. He squares matters with the four he tricked by presenting them with gifts.

Maurice Elvey scored a great personal hit as the tricky letter writer. He was fascinating in the role (which he played in London when the piece was a popular curtain-raiser).

Charles Francis, as the jeweler, played with authority, and Elisabeth Risdon, as the daughter, made a bewitching Oriental beauty in her semi-nudeness. The rest of the company handled their roles skillfully.

The other playlet, "Beauty and the Jacobin," is from the pen of Booth Tarkington, and is a two act "interlude of the French Revolution." It was void of action, and the speeches, which were very long, were uninteresting. For a matter of record only we give the cast herewith:

Anne De Laseyne, Elisabeth Risdon
Louis De Laseyne, E. J. Randall
Eloise D'Anville, Eva Leonard Royle
Valstin, Maurice Elvey
Dossenville, Walter Kingsford

The players did all that they could, but the material was not there. Third Row.

PAUL ARMSTRONG WINS.

Under a decision by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, last week, Klaw & Erlanger cannot recover $1,000 from Paul Armstrong, the playwright.

The managers sued on the ground that they had advanced that sum of money to Armstrong under an agreement by which he was to write a play for them called "In Times of Peace." The plaintiff said the manuscript was put in too late and was unsatisfactory. Armstrong contended he had fulfilled the contract, and the jury upheld him.

SOMETHING DOING.

Fifty applications for membership to the Vaudeville Comedy Club were considered at the meeting of the Board of Control, held Dec. 1. The list includes many prominent managers, booking agents, performers, authors and newspaper men.

For New Year's Eve the suggestion was made and adopted that a special jubilee be held, beginning on the stroke of 12. A light lunch and punch will be served at a counter all day Wednesday, at an open house. The presidential breakfast will be held Thursday, Dec. 5.

FOGARTY ACCEPTS.

The following letter was received by the Vaudeville Comedy Club from the nominee for president:

"To Bert Leslie, president; to the Board of Control and to my fellow members of the Vaudeville Comedy Club:
"Gentlemen—I am in receipt of your letter advising me that I am the selection of your nominating committee for president of the Vaudeville Comedy Club for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1913, for which please accept my most sincere thanks.

"It is a delightful thing at this present day to know that you are respected by your fellow players, to have the confidence in nominating me to the exalted position of president of the Vaudeville Comedy Club, which, in my mind, is the club for cementing true friendship in the little world of our own."

"All I can say is that if I am elected to be your president I will try to live up to your expectations of me in the future. No man can say more than that, and with a sincere feeling of thankfulness and trusting to be all that you expect me to be, I am,

(Signed) "FRANK FOGARTY."

At the request of fifty members a second ticket, naming Jos. M. Schenck for president, was to be placed in the field, but was withdrawn upon Mr. Schenck declining the nomination.

The election will be held Dec. 30.

PERFORMANCES ATOP NEW AMSTERDAM.

The Aerial Theatre (New Amsterdam Theatre Annex) will be occupied on Thursday, Friday and Saturday night, Dec. 5, 6 and 7, by Le Cercle Dramatique de l'Alliance Francaise de New York, which will present in French, "Le Secret de Polichinelle," with a notable cast. Among the subscribers and box holders are: Etienne Lanel, Consul of France, and Mrs. Lanel; Vicomte Dejean, attaché to the embassy; Mr. and Mrs. Henri Golran; ex-Ambassador Robert Bacon and Mrs. Bacon, General Horace Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander T. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. T. Tilston Wells, Mr. and Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. Bourke Cochrane, Mrs. Edward Lauterbach, George C. Heilner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moran, Dr. and Mrs. Williams, Judge W. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. E. Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, Mrs. W. H. Bliss, W. H. Chadbourne, Mrs. Brookfield, Mrs. J. W. Roosevelt, Lucien Jouvand, Prof. Charles S. Downer, Mr. and Mrs. George I. Ide, Madison, George C. Heilner, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien L. Bonheur, and Mrs. Seth Low and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sloane.

MCKINNEL FOR "RUTHERFORD AND SONS."

Norman McKinnel, the eminent English actor who is coming to the United States under the direction of Winthrop Ames, will make his first New York appearance in "Rutherford and Sons," by Githa Sowerby. The play has been one of the most successful of the past year in London, and has won particular patronage as well as critical commendation. It tells in graphic style, in highly picturesque incidents, of the sacrifices which John Rutherford, head of the firm of iron manufacturers, Rutherford & Sons, compels his family to make for the firm, and the final sacrifice which he himself makes for it.

SINGER'S SENTENCE SUSPENDED.

Word was received from Milan last week that Signora Ada Giachetti, the singer, who was recently sentenced to prison and fined for defaming the character of Enrico Caruso, the tenor, is still in Buenos Aires. Miled Giachetti cabled her attorney to appeal the sentence and judgment was suspended, and the singer will not risk arrest when she returns to Milan shortly to fill an engagement.

BUYS THEATRE AND APARTMENTS.

Thomas P. Fitzsimons and William F. Cline have sold Nos. 22 to 28 West Sixty-third Street, 100,000, with four stories, finished theatre and ten story studio apartments. The property was acquired by the sellers in June, 1910, under foreclosure, for $250,000. Frederick H. Robinson is the buyer. He gives back a mortgage for $230,000, due in five years, at five per cent.

BACKUS FOR "PRIMROSE."

George Backus, who recently closed an engagement with the "Coming Home to Roost" Co., has been engaged by Klaw & Erlanger for an important part in "Primrose," the play in which Elsie Ferguson is to be starred. Rehearsals began in New York last week. It will go upon the road for a few weeks, when it opens in New York for a run.

ANOTHER ATLANTIC CITY FIRE.

A fire on the boardwalk at Atlantic City, N. J., Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 27, did $40,000 damage. It started in the story of a small restaurant on Georgia Avenue, and spread to the $20,000 Bradford Hotel, which was destroyed, while other small wooden structures were quickly burned, adding $20,000 to the loss.

TOM PUT IT OVER.

The following message was received at the Vaudeville Comedy Club:

"Atlantic City, Nov. 28.
"To all collectively and each individually, I extend my thanks for kind wishes. They all say I put it over."

NAT GOODWIN LOSES POINT.

Judge Schumuck, of the City Court, denied on Friday, Nov. 29, a motion to re-open the case of Walter D. Turner against Nat C. Goodwin, in which a judgment of $1,022 was rendered on Nov. 21 in favor of Turner. The decision gives permission to renew the motion upon the filing of proper papers.

"MISS PRINCESS" CAST.

The company that will appear with Lina Abarbanel, in "Miss Princess," at the Park Theatre, Dec. 23, will include: Robert Warwick, Henri Leon, Felix Haney, John E. Hazzard, Josie Intropidi and Marguerite Farrell. "Miss Princess" is by Messrs. Frank Mandel, Will B. Johnstone and Alexander Johnstone.

STOCK PLAYLETS AT "THE HALSEY."

The Hackett Morgan Stock Co. are producing "Messenger Boys and Girls," at the New Halsey Brooklyn, this week. Other acts are: Melville and Thatcher, Durand and Russell, Pons and Pons, Edmund Stanley and company, in "A Royal Romance," Adair and Wyant, Florence Mascot.

KEITH'S NEW ST. JOHN HOUSE.

The pillars supporting the main entrance of the Imperial, Keith's new theatre in St. John, Can., were recently found to encroach two feet on the sidewalk, but as the plans had been approved by the building inspectors, the city authorities decided to allow them to remain so. The Keith people, however, preferred having them within the lines of the law and they were re-set.

Mr. Lorenzo, of Manchester, N. H., was in St. John last week, inspecting the new house, and he announced that vaudeville and pictures would be the policy at the Imperial, with ten, twenty and thirty cent admission prices.

Since the announcement, made a few weeks ago, that the Nickel Theatre, in St. John, had been taken over by Walter H. Golding, who has been managing that house since, is slated to manage the Imperial. It now looks as if the Nickel would be a straight picture house. Both houses will be controlled by Keith and managed by Mr. Golding.

THE TROCADEROS (Eastern).

COLUMBIA, NEW YORK, DEC. 2.
"The Three Dukes" is the title of the opening skit, written by Frank Finney for this season, and in it Mr. Finney, Samuel J. Adams and Murray J. Simons bring out a lot of comedy with lively results. As a boatswain, Mr. Finney employs his comedy methods to good advantage, and as one of the "disgusting" dukes, in his admiral's uniform, cut a droll figure, and was right there when it came to making love. Sam Adams, as the big booby cabin boy, who appointed himself a duke, was another heart-breaker, in Cossack uniform, as the Czar's uncle, and Murray Simons completed the trio as a Russian, who was sold with the newspaper correspondent, George Brennan was the scheming student; John P. Griffith was an excellent Stockton Bonds, a broker, and Harry Mantell filled in minor roles.
Minnie Burke was there with the clever work in short skirts, as Peggy. Julia Sinclair played Mrs. Van Bunk, ambitious to marry a duke and to secure one for her daughter. Elsie Leslie was the wide-awake reporter. Corinne Ford was an energetic and sensible Aunt Quimby, and Edith Shaw and Pierce Judah were Bond's daughters. There was continuous action.
Opening with a lively melody by the twenty girls in showy black and orange dresses, Mr. Brennan followed in "The Birthday of the U. S. A." Minnie Burke contributed "Everybody loves a Chicken," with the girls doing chicken work, to five encores, with appropriate dances by Miss Burke and Mr. Simons. "Stockton Bonds" was a melodious number, put over in excellent style by John Griffith; Edith Shaw and Pierce Judah sang a debutante bit; Frank Finney's song about the politician was catchy; Julia Sinclair had "I'll Do as Much for You," with the chorus humming nicely; Griffith's fine vocal song, assisted by the other men, with comedy addenda by Mr. Adams, was encored repeatedly; Miss Judah soloed "That's How I Need You" to undivided attention; "Everybody Two Step," by Miss Burke and Mr. Brennan, was roared off in record style. The chorus had beautiful blue and yellow gowns, with hats and plumes to match, for this number. "I'm Going Back to Yankee Land" was the finale, with the naval and army cadets and sailors led by Mr. Griffin in a West Point uniform. Scenes of a patriotic nature were shown, and a tableau showed an illuminated battleship sailing past the Statue of Liberty.
The second act showed Bonds' office, with Finney as the janitor; Adams as the messenger, and Elsie Leslie as the stenographer. The attempt of Bonds to conceal from Mrs. Bunk, that his daughters have gone on the stage, here led to many situations, and riotous comedy work, with a stock exchange flurry finish, whereby Mr. Bonds saves his fortune.
A typewriter's duet with the office boys was the opener, and the musical machines with electric light attachments made a hit. Elsie Leslie warbled "I'll Sit Right On the Moon" in her usual talking manner, and had some encores. "Hitchie Coo," a topical number, was contributed by Frank Finney, with the girls helping. "Row, Row, Row" was a big hit with Edith Shaw. For this number the girls were attired in garnet full tights, with showy yellow cloaks.
"The Nightmare Rag" had Minnie Burke frightened for fair, and she shivered and shook and sang in the green spotlight. A novel costume was provided for the girls.
The comedy in the second act was well put forward. A funny dictation scene between Miss Leslie and Mr. Adams got many laughs, also Mr. Adams, for his fog horn voiced ejaculations. Mr. Finney was a busy janitor slamming doors and firing the visitors.
The Misses Shaw and Judah flashed up well in tights as full blown burlesquers.
The chorus: Rose Reide, Frances Littau, Marie Littau, Belle Millette, Dorothy Webster, May Smith, Gertrude Stanwood, Maude Bailey, Jessie Stuart, Ray O'Dell, Moxie, Frances Fetter, Florence Jeffries, Marie Van Winkle, Marie Zimmerman, Lillian Frier.

A PUZZLE.
No wonder "Bluch" Cooper is wearing a puzzled expression since reading the write-up of his show in another paper.
We reproduce it because someone might be able to solve it. To anyone sending the correct answer, "Bluch" will send ten shares in his Rockaway peanut factory:
"The answers are what save the two act piece called 'The Blue Rose.' It is consistently written and followed, but the frequency of song, with chorus accompaniment, helped along by an excellent running arrangement and the quiet but effective humor of Tom McRae, get this entertainment very, very far over the footlights. It is spending a pleasant evening to see Mr. Cooper, Mr. McRae and the well costumed company.
The settings for the two acts harmonize. If the chorus girls could sing, but then, one might as well say, if all the principals ranked with Messrs. McRae and Cooper."
MARTIN CLARK has succeeded Fred Strauss as manager of the Runaway Girls.
DIXON AND DOYLE, who have a contract with Loeffler & Brantton, will be loaned to the Shuberts for twenty-two weeks, commencing Dec. 9, at the Winter Garden, New York.

SAM RICE'S DAFFYDILS.

PEOPLE'S, NEW YORK, DEC. 2.
For a good, all around, up-to-date burlesque show, Sam Rice and his Daffydils, at Miner's People's Theatre this week, has just the right stir, and from the rise to the fall of the curtain the Daffydils present enough real entertainment to keep you up to the right pitch of enjoyment. Sam has surrounded himself with a fine cast of principals and an exceptionally good chorus, who can put over the numbers in Hoyle order. His show is finely equipped with handsome scenery, beautiful costumes and novelty electrical effects.
The first part, entitled "The Daffydils on Broadway," by Sam Rice, is full of fast comedy bits, with the musical numbers so interwoven that there is nothing but continuous action from start to finish. Madge Hughes started the ball a-rolling with "Midnight Choo-Choo," which went over in good style. "Parade Song," sung by Billie Hill, was a tremendous hit, and the rag dance at the finish was a fine offering, and showed Mabel Lynest and Miss Hill to be dancers of exceptional ability.
The minstrel first part was nicely put on by Lew Seeker and his minstrels.
A closing melody of four songs, by the entire company, was a good curtain.
"Masuma Land" was a real novelty and something new to burlesque patrons. This is another of Sam Rice's stellar offerings. The opening scene, in one, shows an opium den enjoying the enticing fumes of the poppy, and his dream of money is shown in scene two, "The Land of Galt." This is a very handsome setting, showing houses built of gold and silver dollars, trees of money, the Anheuser bushes, etc. An electrical fountain spraying streams of water on the forms of five fair ones in the tanks is a novelty which attracted attention.
The specialties offered during the action of the burlesque were of the A1 order. The Clark Sisters, singing "You're My Baby," tore along in fine style and scored a hit. Beeson and Hughes slipped over "Ragtime Soldier Man" in good style, and their dancing finish was well liked.
Lew Seeker handed the boys a little big league baseball dopology that tied the score. Sam Rice and Lew Seeker got on the job with a lot of fast patter that was just right and staked the boys to many a laugh.
Mile Vortex, that dainty little aerial performer, thrilled with her wonderful mid-air act on the bit and wire. Mile Vortex suspends herself in the air holding a bit with her teeth, performing wonderful evolutions in a graceful manner. This act was a real sensation.
On the Missississipi closed the burlesque.
Sam Rice, the show maker, kept the audience in good humor from the beginning to the end of the show. The fans didn't seem to get enough of Sam's comedy. His work was a real hit.
Lew Seeker jogged along in great form. Lew was always on the job and got everything that came his way.
Harry S. Le Van was nicely placed in a Jew character, and got over nicely. George Johnson was very much in evidence throughout. His voice made him a real factor, and his work made him a feature.
Dan Conroy, as the fad, was there with the brogue, and his dancing was well liked. Tom Beeson Jr. and Eddie Hart got over nicely.
Billie Hill, a newcomer to burlesque, gave a performance that was a treat. Miss Hill is a handsome blonde, who knows how to wear her gowns, has a good voice, and can put across her songs with magnetism that immediately wins her audience.
Madge Hughes just romped along in the soubrette role, and scored at all times. As a leader of numbers put Madge Hughes down as one who has the right idea.
The Clark Sisters, two little blondes, were much in evidence, and their work was good. Their songs and looks were the kind burlesque fans like.
Chorus: Babe Clark, Dorothy Temple, Dollie West, Prisma Capri, Leslie Leslie, Irene Clark, Cecelia Capri, Tricie Harris, Anna Lindler, Ethel Covert, Ella Ewing, Bonnie Carroll, Mabel Lynest, Louise Hall, Perth Stone, Maud Le Claire, Ray Gilbert, Mile, Fayette, Marg. Gilbert, Lilly Livingston.

RAGTIME IN CHURCH.
At Minneapolis, Minn., the Rev. G. L. Morrill introduced to the pulpit two burlesque chorists, as "horrible examples," illustrating the bold and movements of the "turkey trot" and kindred diversions, incidental to his sermon against the evil. The big organ accompanied the dancers with up-to-date ragtime music. In his sermon the Rev. Mr. Morrill stated that these dances "would make the Devil blush."

THE FAMILY THEATRE. Carbondale, Pa., closed as a vaudeville house Nov. 30. Manager Frank J. Wingenfeld is considering burlesque bookings.
"BLUCH" COOPER was presented with a cigar box section of a peanut farm by his neighbors in Eldsea Court, Rockaway Beach, at a theatre party given by them at the Columbia, New York, last week.
COM. CHARLES H. BARTON has returned from a trip to Chicago. He has been busy for the past week superintending the addition of another story to the Centrepont Yacht Club House.

BLANCHE MARTIN ILL.
Blanche Martin, of the A1. Reeves Co., was removed to the Brooklyn Hospital last week, suffering from heart disease, and is in a serious condition. Her role is being played by Catherine Crawford.

AL. REEVES played to the biggest business in the history of the house at Hoboken, Dec. 2, nearly equaling the amount generally played to in three days.

COLUMBIA CONCERT.

At the Columbia, New York, a good sized house attended the afternoon show and a packed house the night performance.
The Belmonts opened with a showy acrobatic and ring act. (See New Acts.)
Ryan and Bell, a likely couple, sang and danced, the lady proving herself an exceptionally nimble high kicker in the opening stanza. A skipping rope dance further introduced her. The couple then went into a sailor hornpipe with many eccentric steps and movements, the lady's work being equal to any man in that line.
Iza Hampton and company had a sketch of the future, when the husband stays home in a kitchen to mind the baby and the wife goes gallivanting about in an aeroplane until all hours of the night. The wife returns home late to her complaining spouse, and is visited by another club member, who makes love to the defenseless husband. A quarrel ensues, and finally the husband throws off the yoke and asserts his authority. The action was laughed at, but the dialogue did not hit very well.
Bogert and Nelson introduced their minstrel troupe, consisting of themselves and a lot of singers and musicians painted on the drop. The exterior of the opera house was the opening scene, and some talk between the lady interlocutor and the colored janitor resulted in his being engaged for the end-man. In the show he sang "Row, Row, Row" to repeated encores. Miss Nelson sang "Oh-You May," and the entire company sang "Goblin Man," with "Swamp Swamp Ragtime" encore, and the Record Washing-Up Gag" to good returns.
The Lawn Party introduced nine juvenile performers. The talent promised for the party was stalled, and the children themselves made up as Mantell, Tanguay, Warfield, Fay, Completion, Cohan, Irony, Franklin, Caruso, Bessie McCoy and Lillian Russell. The imitations incidental to each character all caused applause. The young man who played the sheriff proved himself a first class knockabout comedian, with a novel assortment of falls, and stunts, and delivery. He kept the house laughing.
Laurence Johnston and his winking and smiling dummy, provided ventriloquical diversion of entertaining nature, and their imitations and small talk was well liked, also the singing.
Jim O'Brien and boys, a singer, a pianist, and a violinist, put over a number of songs in good form, including "All Aboard for Alabama," "Ragtime Cowboy Joe," "Ghost of the Violin," and "Take Me to that Swanee Shore." The violinist contributed a ragtime melody "Top good results."
The "Top of the World Dancers" showed their fine act, including the four men, the nine girls, and the six colles. The big bear was especially well played, and the princess doll and the entire act made the usual big hit.

Cabaret News.

WOLFE'S INN, Boston Post Road and Larchmont Avenue, Larchmont, N. Y., is the only up-to-date roadhouse in the town running a large cabaret show made up of performers who have recently been in vaudeville. Jake Wolfe, the proprietor, is well known to the profession on Broadway, being one of the oldest chop house owners.
OWING to the increase of business at the Imperial Hotel, Brooklyn, A. D. Martino, cabaret manager, has enlarged his show. The additions are as follows: Dan Caslar, Peter Ciaramello, Henry Hill, Joe Arnold and Grace Benedict.
JOE WARD, the red tie boy at the College Inn, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, New York City, known as the match holder king, has returned after finishing his vaudeville engagements. Joe is a "bear" putting over songs.
BALIE FAY, the ragtime kid, formerly at Snyder's, Brooklyn, is causing a riot at Faust's, on Fifty-ninth Street, New York.
THE LOBSTER PALACE, at Forty-seventh Street and Broadway, is drawing good patronage these nights with a first class cabaret and fine eating.
WM. W. PELL, formerly with Mildred Holland, who is a descendant of the old Pell family of minstrel fame, has taken charge of the Malson Blanche, on Seventh Avenue, opposite the Alhambra Theatre, where he will be pleased to meet old friends.

NO CHANGES FOR WEBER-FIELDS
Joe Weber informs THE CLIPPER that there is absolutely no foundation to the report that any changes will be made in the principals of their All Star Stock Co. It will remain as it is for the present.

J. BERNARD DYLLIN could not accept the engagement with Joseph Howard's "Frisolous Geraldine" Co., as he has been advised by his physician not to leave New York for the road this season.

"THE FIREFLY."

Lyric (Sam S. & Lee Shubert, Inc., mgrs.)
—The Firefly, a comedy opera in three acts, book and lyrics by Otto Hauerbach, music by Rudolf Friml, first presented in New York by Arthur Hammerstein, with this cast:
Sybil Vandare..... Vera De Rosa
Suzette..... Ruby Norton
Pietro..... Sammy Lee
Geraldine Vandare..... Audrey Maple
Jack Travers..... Craig Campbell
John Thurston..... Melville Stewart
Mrs. Oglesby Vandare..... Katherine Stewart
Jenkins..... Roy Atwell
Herr Franz..... Henry Vogel
Nina..... Emma Trentini
Antonio Colombo..... Irene Cassini
Correll..... George Williams
In "The Firefly" Arthur Hammerstein has succeeded in getting another capital vehicle for his fascinating star, Emma Trentini, and one which should prove a big winner for him. The music, by Mr. Friml, is more "classy" than is usually heard in works of this class, but still the composer has succeeded in giving the proper hit and catchiness to the various numbers (there are twenty-one in all) so necessary to make them popular with the mass of theatregoers.
The book and lyrics are capital, probably the best Mr. Hauerbach has given us, and there is a pretty little story running through the work that gives it an added charm.
The opening shows Recreation Pier, at the foot of Twenty-third Street, New York, with a steamer docked. Mrs. Oglesby Vandare is about to chaperon a party of young people on a pleasure trip to the Vandare estate in Bermuda. In this party are Geraldine Vandare (niece of Mrs. Vandare), Jack Travers, her fiancé; Sybil Vandare, John Thurston (Jack's uncle), Herr Franz, a musician; Jenkins, Mrs. Oglesby's secretary; Suzette and Pietro, her servants, and a crowd of young men and women. As the boat is about to sail Jack hears Nina, an Italian girl, singing, and takes a fancy to her. She is a friend of Suzette and Pietro, and they induce her to put on boy's clothes to enable her to come as a cabin boy with the party. She sings and sings, and is entranced by the supposed boy's singing, and "he" is taken with them. "Tony," as the "boy" is called, wins his way to the hearts of all save Geraldine, and she finally induces her aunt to send "him" away. To prevent this, Herr Franz determines to adopt "him," but the discovery of "his" sex upsets this plan, and the party returns to New York. In the mean time Geraldine discovers that she does not love Jack, but does love his uncle.
Three years later, at the Vandare New York home Mrs. Vandare is giving a reception in honor of the approaching marriage of Jack and Geraldine. A great artist, a Mme. Glanina, has been engaged to sing for the occasion. Of course, this singer is none other than little Nina, who, under the tutelage of Herr Franz, has become one of the world's greatest singers. Geraldine releases Jack to accept Thurston, and the curtain falls with a tact understanding between Jack and Nina.
It is a pretty story, prettily and consistently told. The situations are good, the characters are well drawn, the lines are bright, and the lyrics are capital. With such a libretto it is little wonder that the composer found inspiration for such pleasing music.
In drawing the character of Nina Mr. Hauerbach has been most felicitous, and has given Mme. Trentini one of the most pleasing to the author's work in this section this artist has added her fascinating personality with the result that she is delightfully charming. Vocally, she was perfection. Aside from several very catchy songs, the composer provided her with two, "Glanina" and "The Day," which, being of grand opera calibre, enabled her to show her beautiful voice at its very best. At the end of act two, after repeated recalls, she was forced to come before the curtain and repeat one of her arias. Mme. Trentini's acting also captivated her audience, her impish tricks adding much charm to her characterization.
To Roy Atwell was given the burden of the comedy, and that he easily carried it was evident from the pronounced hit he made. Mr. Atwell is a comedian of whom one never tires. His style is unique, quite away from the beaten path, and his dry humor is of the kind that compels laughter.
Audrey Maple, Melville Stewart and Craig Campbell all acquitted themselves well, both as to singing and acting.
Ruby Norton and Sammy Lee, old vaudeville favorites, danced their way into the good graces of the audiences, and also proved themselves clever players.
Henry Vogel sang and acted well.
The chorus work was excellent, the men and women of the chorus having excellent voices. The production was up to the Hammerstein elaborate standard, the scene of act two being especially pleasing to the eye. Gaetano Morola deserves praise for the masterly way he directed the orchestra, and Fred G. Latham for staging the work.
Among the most pleasing of the song numbers were: "He Says Yes, She Says No," "Call Me Uncle," "Love Is Like a Firefly," "Tommy Atkins," "Sympathy," "A Woman's Smile," "De Trop," "Kiss Me and 'Tis Day" and "Glanina."

HYLAND, GRANT AND HYLAND are now playing a successful engagement over the Ed. Fisher Circuit.

"MERE MAN."

Harris (Wm. N. Harris, mgr.)—Mere Man, a comedy in three acts, by Augustus Thomas. Produced by William Harris Monday evening, Nov. 25, with the following cast:
Mary..... Helen Hancock
Annie..... Fan Bourke
Judson..... Tom Graves
Mrs. Fanwood..... Kathryn Browne
Margaret..... Helen Orr
Ada Hawley..... Minnette Barrett
David Hawley..... Clifford Bruce
Trowbridge..... William Sampson
Dr. Donald Pierson..... Orlando Daly
Kinsley..... De Witt C. Jennings
Esther Lennard..... Crystal Hens
Molloy..... Charles Sturgis
Schoenbeck..... Robert B. Kegerreis
Dan Riardon..... Sedley Brown Jr.
The story has to do with a district attorney and his wife, who are at variance over the question of woman's right to vote. The attorney contends that man should govern, because force is essential. At the time employees of the gas works in Yonkers are on strike, and the town is suddenly plunged into darkness. The streets are scenes of violence. The suffrage wife, her domineering aunt, and a woman ascologist, whom the wife's father, a physician, loves, find that they are in danger, and they finally admit that after all, man is useful, even if only for protection. It failed to win favor and was withdrawn Saturday evening, Nov. 30.

COLONIAL.

(RALPH EDMUNDS, MGR.)
After several postponements, Cecilia Loftus made her American re-appearance at the matinee here of Dec. 2.
Miss Loftus has been quite ill since her return to America some weeks ago, and this fact, and her desire to perfect herself in several new imitations of American actresses, has caused the delay in starting her tour over the Keith circuit.
That Miss Loftus' reception at her first entrance on Monday was a most cordial one, goes without saying. There was a spontaneity about it which must convince the talented woman that she is as popular here as in her own country. Nor is it necessary here to dwell upon her performance on Monday. She again demonstrated her perfection in an art which has made her famous and pre-eminent here and in Europe, and in not one of her imitations on Monday did she fail to go closely follow in voice, gesture and peculiar mannerisms of the well known stage people she imitates. Her imitations on Monday included Mrs. Fiske, Jane Cow, Nora Bayes, Billie Burke, Florence Nash and Ray Samuels. She also gave two of Maude Allan's classic dances very artistically, but they did not seem to appeal to the audience.
In the excellent bill put forth here this week the names of Wm. Rock and Maude Fulton justly hold a position of prominence, and, in passing, a word of regret is in order. Vaudeville will not enjoy their admirable character songs and artistic dancing (as a team) after their present engagements terminate. They will surely be missed.
Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Keeler appeared for the first time this season in their delightful comedietta, "In and Out." This piece has served this talented duo faithfully and well, and is by no means passé, according to the longevity of vaudeville sketches nowadays. They announce a new sketch in preparation.
Fred Duprez seemed to hit the fancy of the Monday audience in his snappy and witty monologue. Mr. Duprez has a capital stage presence, and a confidence in himself which seems to say "you have just got to like me," also the material I am going to offer you. There were no dissenters in the big audience.
Knutting's Entertainers, comprising a stage full of animals and pigeons, is now one of the showiest acts in vaudeville. The finale with the cats and birds in the miniature balloon, and the cats leaping from the places in the basket, won well deserved applause.
Phina, and her Picks, scored finely in songs and dances. She has three bright young people in her act, and their acrobatic dancing continues to be the prime feature of the act.
Dorothy Brenner and Joseph Ratiff put over their new sketch, "At the Flower Stand," and established themselves as favorites with their very first song. Miss Brenner is a cute little comedienne, and in her act to her finger tips. Mr. Ratiff's singing voice was heard to advantage, and the comedy lines of the little sketch are entertaining.
The Wartenburg Bros. started the show with their fine acrobatic work and foot juggling. They are neat workers, and deserved a better program position.
Lydia and Albino, in the closing position, held them in solidly in their spectacular acrobatic act. It was their debut here. See New Acts, this issue. Old Times.

Metropolitan Opera House.—Bills for week ending Nov. 30 were: The Girl of the Golden West 25, Il Trovatore 27, Parsifal 28 (matinee), La Boheme 28 (night), Koriambini 29, Hansel and Gretel and I Pagliacci 30 (matinee).
Keeney's Third Avenue (Ed. J. McMahon, mgr.)—Vaudeville and motion pictures.
Park (Frank McKee, mgr.)—This house is dark for the current week.

OPENING OF FOX'S NEW AUDUBON.

William Fox opened his new theatre, the Audubon, on Wednesday night, Nov. 27. The house is located on Broadway and St. Nicholas Avenue. One hundred and sixty-fifth and one hundred and sixty-sixth streets, occupying the entire block, and is directly opposite the American League Park. The entire building cost more than $2,000,000.

The theatre, with the exception of the Hippodrome, is the largest in the city and the largest devoted to small time vaudeville. It seats 3,400, with a roof garden seating 2,800. It may be said without fear of contradiction, that there is no prettier theatre in America.

The interior is artistically decorated in gold, silver and royal purple. There is no gallery. From every seat in the house a perfect view of the stage is afforded the spectator. There are twelve boxes, all built above the orchestra floor, and there is not a post to obstruct the view in the auditorium. There are seventeen exits on the main floor, and almost as many on the balcony, making the house one of the safest in the world.

The exterior is of enameled brick, with many protruding Fox heads. It is one of the show places of Washington Heights. It contains twenty-one stores, a ballroom and assembly hall. The main entrance to the theatre is on the Broadway side, and more than 3,000 persons passed through the doors on the opening night. More than 2,000 could not secure seats.

Harry L. Reichenbach is resident manager.

The house was dedicated by Fire Commissioner Joseph Johnson, who, with his family, occupied a box. The commissioner paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Fox, and gave a brief account of his remarkable rise as a theatrical manager. He congratulated the residents of Washington Heights on having such a beautiful house "just around the corner from their homes." (The commissioner lives a few blocks from the theatre.) He closed his remarks by dragging Mr. Fox upon the stage and presented him with a gold fire badge.

Mr. Fox was compelled to make a speech. He was suffering from a severe cold, and his words could be scarcely heard by those in the back of the house. Mr. Fox's speech was one of thanks, and he promised his patrons that only the best in vaudeville would grace the stage of the new Audubon.

Booking Manager Edward F. Kealey provided a special bill for the opening, and it was voted a "bummer" by all present.

To the Bell Brothers belongs the honor of being the first performers to step upon the stage of the new house. Their well known dancing act scored a most emphatic hit, and they also scored with their singing.

No. 2 on the bill was Daly and company,

LINCOLN SQUARE.

(CHAS. FERGUSON, MGR.)

The new vaudeville show of Monday, Dec. 2, brought six acts of more or less entertaining caliber.

Even though only six acts are required in the semi-weekly change of bills here, it is not possible, always, to arrange bookings that will form a bill where every act is an applause winner or a sure laugh getter. The bill for Dec. 2-4 may be considered an even good one.

The Dixie Serenaders of colored vocalists and dancers came on at 8.05. The minstrel first-act scene. There are four males and two females in the act, which is neatly costumed, and the idea of the act, though far from being a new one, has possibilities which are not taken advantage of by these performers. One thing in particular, there is too much bolsterous vocalism, and the appealing banality for which the colored race is noted is not considered by them as the act is now arranged.

The male Langslow, of the act the Two Langsloes, did some excellent shooting with pistol and magazine guns. Beginning with shooting from the balcony, he followed with expert work on stage, closing with shooting from a suspended slack wire, and making very few misses.

Pike and Calame did a long dancing act which was worthy of more appreciation than they received, except at their finish, when they were rewarded with a good "hand."

Marie La Varr vocalized agreeably, and displayed two charming costumes. Her best number was "Oh, What a Beautiful Dream."

Harry Leighton and company held the sketch position of the bill, presenting several phases in the robbery and recovery of some valuable diamonds. The sketch gave opportunity to Mr. Leighton for several fine displays of the art of rapid make-up, and this helped to get the sketch by entertainingly.

The illustrated song number came in at this point, its title being "That Old Girl of Mine."

Wilson and Pearson did one of those dialogue and vocal acts, and it was one of the pleasantest numbers of the bill. The young woman was quite a finished comedienne, and possessed of an engaging personality. Their songs, "In the Days of Boys and Girls," "Just Like Sister Does" and the "Telephone" number, were finely put over, and brought success to a refined and meritorious act.

Old Timer.

Unique (E. L. Well, mgr.)—Vaudeville and motion pictures.

Plaza (David Benjamin, mgr.)—Loew vaudeville and motion pictures.

Grand Street (Harry Beckman, mgr.)—Vaudeville and motion pictures.

Miner's Eighth Avenue (E. D. Miner, mgr.)—Queens of the Polka Bergere this week. Watson's Burlesquers follows.

who successfully presented the clever sketch, "Cherie," made famous by Clayton White and the late Marie Stuart.

Spot three was given to Oscar Lorraine, who now works with a pretty young woman. Their act is mentioned in our New Acts column in this issue.

Ward and Cullen (man and woman) were fourth on the program, and scored heavily. The woman is pretty and has a good singing voice. The man also does his share in making the act a good one.

Harry First and his company, which consists of two women and two men, occupied the fifth position on the bill. They appeared in "The Strongest Link," a one act drama, which was very human in its story. The work of Mr. First and the young woman playing his child, stamped them both players of unquestionable ability. We understand that she is Mrs. First in private life.

Eva Shilsky held down the sixth position and made good, although she started very slowly. Her selections of songs are hardly suited to her.

Harry Tighe and Edith Clifford (seventh position) carried off the lion's share of the evening's applause. These two are entertainers in every sense of the word. They "kidded" each other, to the delight of the audience, which was loath to let them go.

The eighth spot was entrusted to Spot, a clever little dog, who reads, writes and draws, and the animal does it without much coaching from his master (whose name we do not know). It is an act that pleases the women and children interests the men.

Slayman's All Arabs, eleven in number, were the ninth on the bill and, despite the lateness of the hour (11.15), were a great success. Their tumbling was received with laughter and applause.

The tenth act on the bill was Ethel White and her Pinks. This is a well known act, which gets over at all times.

"The Homery Opera Trio" closed the show. Their work is also well known to those familiar with vaudeville.

The Audubon, which splits with the Academy of Music, offered the following bill for Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 7 and 8.

Bill week of Dec. 2, first half: Three Gamons, Lewis and Norton, Ruth Becker, Broughton Turner, Pringle and Allen, Bell Boy Trio, Stone and Jackson Trio, and Toomer Howins. Last half: Harry First and company, Rober and Tunison, Kingsbury and Munson, Tate's "Motoring," "Harriett," Herman Seitz, and the Glendale Troupe.

Third Row.

AMERICAN.

(CHARLES S. POTSDAM, MGR.)

The inclement weather on Monday night, Dec. 2, put a dent into the business, both downstairs and in the roof theatre. The show was good, but it lacked speed.

Kit Karson began the evening festivities with his novelty shooting act, and had no trouble in getting the glad hand.

The McCarvers, a colored act, got over big. The woman is quite the best looking dusky belle we have ever seen of the team, and however, is the strong end of the team, and is an unusually good eccentric dancer. He needs some up-to-date songs.

Emma Francis and her Arabs, (3), contributed an excellent act, full of color and ginger. It scored an emphatic success, which it truly merited. Miss Francis dances skillfully, and her costumes are in good taste. Her act makes her changes the Arabians tumble all over the stage to the delight of the audience.

Morton and Klissen presented Matthews and Ashley's old act, "Held Up."

Apollo, the boy violinist, managed to interest the audience, but offering nothing in the way of a novelty. He plays the violin fairly well.

Harry English and company (two women) offered a sketch called "What's in a Name?" which proved a laughing success, due more to a remarkably clever and entirely new swooning stunt (contributed by the woman who plays the wife) than by the author's lines. The playlet is rather poorly played. This swooning stunt must be seen to be appreciated. It's sure to be copied.

The Romany Opera Company (three men and five women), offered a unique novelty, with selections from the standard operas, and gave a good account of themselves. They are here for the full week.

Harry Tighe and Edith Clifford (who played the Winter Garden on Sunday night last) were a riot with the American audience on Monday night. They have an act that is very entertaining. They are also here for the full week.

The Olympic Trio are parallel bar gymnasts of unusual skill. They work fast, and their difficult stunts are executed with apparent ease.

The bill for Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday includes: William S. Giff and company, Tighe and Clifford, Romany Opera Co., Bert Earl Trio, Schreck and Percival, Bernard and Roberts, Juliet Wood, the Lucados, and the Lillian Sisters. Third Row.

Manhattan (C. M. Shacofsky, mgr.)—Freaks and motion pictures.

Columbia (J. Herbert Mack, mgr.)—Troaderos this week. Knickerbockers follows.

Miner's People's (Edwin D. Miner, mgr.)—Duffylls this week. Follies of the Day follows.

KEITH'S UNION SQUARE.

(ELMER F. ROGERS, MGR.)

Rainy weather ushered in the current week, but there was no sign of gloom within this house, where Elmer Rogers is successfully endeavoring to please his patrons with the best possible programs.

After Ernest Thorneil and his musical orchestra offered a melodious raggy melody to the approval of a well filled house on Monday evening, the Gene Muller Trio opened up the show in an ordinary hoop manipulating act, that was interrupted many times (at this performance) by consecutive "slips" by the larger of the three men who compose the team. The best part of the act was where the said guilty party scaled webbed hoops out into the audience, and the efforts of the other two catching them as they returned stageward aroused quite some amusement.

Adeline Francis, billed as the Graphophone Girl, proved a novelty here and was well received. (See New Acts.)

Stepp, Allman and King, in "The Phoney Photographer," and Kathryn Kidder, in her famous character of Mme. Sans Gene, under the title of "The Washerwoman Duchess," were also new here, and are reviewed under New Acts in this issue.

Linden Beckwith is sure enough the magnetic mistress of melody. Miss Beckwith is a prima donna possessing a soprano voice of wonderful sweetness and power, and the intelligence and feeling she cases into a song is most soothing to the hearer. She sang three pretty changes of costumes, her last being a "daisy" creation of white, effectively draped with black lace veiling and silver fringe, and set off with a very becoming white hat, "all bound round with a plummy plume." Linden took them by storm, and was the recipient of a huge bouquet of red roses at the close of her final number.

Ruth Raynor and company puzzled the audience for a while trying to figure what "What Happened in Room 44" was all about. But they grasped the idea in time to enjoy a few laughs, and give Miss Raynor generous applause for her efforts. The story tells of how a woman made known her attempt at suicide as a ruse for obtaining money from a hotel owner who, in order to save the reputation of his establishment, shelved out the necessary beans over the transom of Room 44, and after she left the hotel he found that the pistol she left when discharged was merely a fan. It remains the same as when Miss Raynor was first seen in this queer sketch. Norman Roberts and Frank Merrill gave her able support in the respective roles of the landlord and the bell boy.

Jim Diamond and Sibyl Brennan were the hit of the bill in their melange of "Nifty-nose." Jim is the same loose-jointed, regular comedian, while Miss Brennan sang as clear and sweet as of yore, and looked charming in the two costumes she wore. Jim is the "scream," while Sibyl is the "cream" part of the act. "And the Green Grass Grew All Around," etc., got about six encores for Mr. Diamond, and he was doing the perspiration stunt freely when Miss Brennan came to his rescue for their final number and accompanying dance. ("Big" is putting it mildly.)

Following a small riot act, Cliff Gordon didn't worry about "no laughs being left." The German senator "politician" through about seventeen minutes of his realistic, funny speeches on his views of how the country is run, and piled away another usual success. Cliff could make the Sphinx at least giggle. Some German.

The Apollo Trio of brawn and muscle closed the evening's entertainment with their many feats of strength and skill. They are three well put-together athletes, and everything they attempted met with generous applause.

Next week, beginning Monday matinee, Dec. 9, will be "Old Timers' Week," and to celebrate it auspiciously Manager Rogers has arranged a treat of a program which will include Maggie Cline, of "McClokey" fame; Ward and Curran, the funny old boys, in "The Stage Door Canteen"; Lydia Yearning, daughter of the late Jennie Yeaman; Gus Williams, the Dutch dialect dispenser; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Murphy, in "Clancy's Ghost"; Col. Sam Holdsworth, the grand old tenor; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thorne, in "An Uptown Flat"; Hines and Remington, in "Notoriety"; Caron and Herbert, as funny and skillful gymnasts as ever; and John Le Claire, the great old juggler.

PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET.

(JOSEPH HAUG, MGR.)

The bill for the first half of the week of Dec. 2 opened well on Monday.

Sylvester, a magician, with a good line of talk, and who performed his several tricks cleverly, was very well liked.

Lang and Bucher, in a singing and dancing act, opened with a conversational song over telephones. The man does a negro dancing specialty, and the woman renders a song.

They closed by singing and dancing to the tune of "The Ghost of the Goblin Man."

The Glissandos, a man in comedy make-up, and a rather pretty young woman, entertained by rendering various selections on brass and stringed instruments.

June Mills is a comedienne of no mean ability. Miss Mills is rather plumply built, but gets around in a lively manner. Her voice is deep and strong, and the songs offered proved to be well liked.

The Heidelberg Four, a singing quartette of big men, in neat uniforms, also pleased with their harmony, the bass being especially well liked.

Valentine Vox, a ventriloquist, in evening dress, displayed a good knowledge of his art. He uses his voice very well and, with a little improvement in his material, should do much better.

"The Flower of Bagdad," an Oriental pantomime production, in three scenes, holds the headline position. Just what it is all about is a little difficult to understand, but that there is some good comedy acting by several men is sure. It seems that a Turk is anxious to add a young woman to his harem. She is not anxious to be added. Her lover also objects. She is stolen by a servant of the Turk, who is a good comedian. A negro servant of the young lover sees the kidnapping of the girl, and follows the thief after letting his master know. The girl is taken to the harem, where her lover finds her, and while he and the old Turk are engaging in a fight she stabs the old man, and his servant is arrested for the deed. There are several other characters in the sketch, which has a number of funny incidents.

Doc.

Weber's (Joseph M. Weber, mgr.)—Jos. Conoly presented "Atop of the World in Motion," the original Alaska-Siberia motion pictures taken by Beverly B. Dobbs, for the first time publicly in New York City, on Sunday evening, Dec. 1. Mr. Dobbs, who lectured on the pictures, spent ten years in getting them, and they are indeed a wonderful spectacle. During the intermission between reels Mr. Dobbs exhibited beautiful specimens of carved walrus tusks and clothing worn in the Arctic regions. He was also most courteous in answering questions put to him by an appreciative audience. A tourgeologist it is in every sense of the word. Starting from Seattle, Mr. Dobbs' pictures take you on a most thrilling, interesting and educational trip through the heart of Alaska's ice and snow, and land you in the Northern gold fields, where a $50,000 clean-up is shown in operation, and the mammoth gold dredgers at work. Then you are sailed from Behring Sea into the Arctic Ocean; a Polar bear chase and capture furnishes exciting entertainment. The bear is hoisted aboard the boat, and, after being washed and skinned, we proceed on our trip and land at Cape Prince of Wales, where the Eskimos are shown at work and at play. Returning to the good ship, Sea Wolf, Mr. Dobbs takes you on a cruise to Siberia, where trading with the natives, by the light of the midnight sun, is indulged in, and the natives entertain you with their own peculiar style of singing and dancing. The most startling pictures of all are shown in the last reel, where thousands of walrus are shown in herds. When the difficulty of taking these pictures is considered, the photography is marvelous. Many scenes are taken with the camera held in Mr. Dobbs' arms, he not having time to set it properly, and others in igloos bobbing around in the rough Arctic sea. Still other scenes show ice and snow clad mountains, with their reflections shown so vividly in the peaceful waters of the inland that it is with difficulty one discerns where the shore ends and the reflection begins. One might read the best of books about Arctic life and then not know half so much as he will know after seeing the wonderful pictures, for what the eyes see, the mind believes. For an evening of real instruction and pleasure, visit Weber's Theatre, while the pictures are being shown. Every day at 2.30 and 8.30.

CHICAGO NEWS

ADVERTISEMENTS AND SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED AT WESTERN BUREAU OF NEW YORK CLIPPER, 505 ASHLAND BLOCK, RANDOLPH AND CLARK STREETS, CHICAGO

MONDAY, Dec. 2.

THE GRAND OPERA PREMIERE.
The third grand opera season of the Chicago Grand Opera Co. was brilliantly inaugurated at the Auditorium, Tuesday night, Nov. 26, with a novelty—Puccini's "Manon Lescaut."

The time has passed when Chicago audiences would be content with the routine old operas, though it is equally true that they do not wish to lose the lasting pleasure and education that lies in these classic works. But they do want operas that show the modern development of music, and older operas which have not had frequent American production.

The Chicago Grand Opera Co. is now an established institution, opening its season with the prestige and momentum that come with age. The splendid sale of boxes this year, coupled with the magnificent response to the low price schedule for gallery seats, shows that the enterprise is based upon that broad, popular support which can alone guarantee success and permanence.

BUILDING 110 THEATRES.

There are 110 theatres in course of construction in Chicago. Seven of them are first class houses, with a seating capacity averaging 1,200 persons. The others range from 300 to 800, and average more than 500.

On this basis, during the next few months, the seating capacity of Chicago theatres will be increased by 60,000.

There are now in Chicago 635 theatres of all classes, 44 of which average 1,200 seats, and the others 500. This means that the first class houses have room for 52,800 persons each night, and the smaller houses can seat 295,500 persons.

The total seating capacity of the theatres now operating is 348,300, and with the completion of the buildings now in course of construction, will go to 408,300.

THEATRE FOR EACH 3,355.

There will then be a theatre for every 3,355 persons in the city, figuring the population at the round figure of 2,500,000. Figuring that the movies give only two performances a day, or that the attendance at all performances a week average the equal of a full house twice a day, more than 800,000 persons must see the moving picture shows a day in Chicago to hold up the average as it is now running.

During 1911-12 sixty-five buildings, once used for moving picture shows, were closed. These were for the most part old buildings which had been converted into moving picture theatres when the craze struck Chicago, and whose proprietors have since obtained better locations. It is a natural sequence that these structures should be restored to their original use.

COST MORE THAN $2,000,000.

The cost of the new theatre buildings now being added is in excess of $2,000,000.

This remarkable extension of theatrical activity will naturally tend to increase Chicago's importance as a producing centre. The second largest city in the United States, with the best railroad facilities of any municipality in America centrally located and with critics who are fair, Chicago presents an inviting field for producing managers. The dramatic reviewers, filled with the exhilarating ozone of the West, readily recognize and appreciate merit. Chicago's inevitable development as a great theatrical centre will prove a boon to costumers, wig makers, shoemakers, scenic painters, dramatic writers, book agents, operatic and dramatic schools, musical publishers, lithograph plants, artists, musical directors, and an army of others who cater to the profession.

HAMILTON'S PLAY.

Founded on a subject that is now being discussed in every civilized home in which there are children, Cosmo Hamilton's play, "The Blindness of Virtue," is now playing at the Studebaker Theatre.

Written into the play are a number of capital comedy scenes as well as good dramatic situations, and it is played by the original English company, among whom are A. Holmes-Gore, Basil Hallam, A. Hamilton, Gibbs, Lena Hilliday, Madge Murray, Pollie Emery and Doris Lytton.

An attraction of unique magnitude and interest comes to the American Music Hall Sunday, Dec. 8, when William Morris will present Annette Kellermann, Jefferson De Angelis and Stella Mayhew, in two pretentious musical productions, "Wood Nymphs" and "The Barnyard Romeo." A supporting company of seventy people is headed by Dorothy Webb, Billie Taylor, Bert Kalmar and G. Molasso. Miss Kellermann, assisted by G. Molasso and a ballet of English dancing girls, will appear in "Wood Nymphs," a woodland fantasy or fairy story, set to music. De Angelis and Stella Mayhew will appear in "The Barnyard Romeo."

JOSEPH E. HOWARD expects to produce at the Olympic theatre, on Dec. 22, his new musical comedy, "Frivolous Geraldine." Howard himself and Mabel McCane will have important parts in it.

THE NEW YORK CLIPPER is not conventional. It is original, aggressive, impartial, reliable, and above all, IT HAS A CERTAIN ORIGINALITY AND DISTINGUISHMENT WHICH PLACES IT IN A CLASS BY ITSELF.

Although the Colonial Theatre is still without information concerning the choice of an attraction for next week and thereafter, there are evidences that the Granichstaedten comic opera, "The Rose Maid," will be sung there on Dec. 8 and onward until Dec. 29 at least. The Colonial has been expecting Robert Hilliard and "The Argyle Case," but that star and that play will come to the Blackstone instead.

The management of the Chicago Grand Opera Company has been hoping and hopes still, that the coming of the Gilbert & Sullivan Comic Opera Company to this centre might be deferred a while, not with a view to avoiding competition, but because of a desire to bring the organization to the Auditorium for a season of Gilbert & Sullivan revivals after the grand opera season. The Auditorium management has had in mind a plan for a comic opera season of about three weeks, but, if the Gilbert & Sullivan Company comes to the Garrick that plan will be abandoned, and in all probability "The Daughter of Heaven" will be transferred from the Century Theatre, in New York City, to the Auditorium early in February, with the Drury Lane melodrama, "The Whip," to follow.

SARAH BERNHARDT has slightly revised her repertoire for her first week in American vaudeville, and instead of acting part of "Camille" at the Majestic this afternoon, she offered the crucial scene from Victor Hugo's "Lucrèce Borgia." Besides the third act of "Lucrèce Borgia," Bernhardt will act this week in the fourth act of Racine's "Phedre," the torture scene from Sardou's "La Tosca," the last act of Dumas' "Camille," the third act of Sardou's "Theodora," and in "A Christmas Night Under the Terror," long one act play by the actress' son, Maurice Bernhardt, and Henri Cain.

BERNHARDT TO BE BRIDESMAID.

With Sarah Bernhardt as bridesmaid, with Beatrice Pliss, of St. Paul, as the bride, and with Edward Sullivan, manager of the Studebaker Theatre, as bridegroom, there will take place soon in Chicago a wedding of eclipsing interest.

Some details are lacking. The date is not announced, and it is not yet possible to describe the costume of the bride and the bridesmaid. But the engagement of Miss Pliss to the prominent theatre manager was announced Thursday, at the Auditorium Hotel, where Miss Pliss lives.

And not merely the wedding, but also the honeymoon will be of unique interest. For it is to be nothing less than a twenty weeks' tour with the "Divine Sarah."

Mr. Sullivan has arranged to be the diva's personal manager during this, her occasional "farewell" tour of America. And his bride-to-be is joyously telling her friends about the prospect.

Mr. Sullivan went East to meet Mme. Bernhardt last week. He is among the most popular theatre managers of Chicago, and has many close friends among American and foreign stars.

His bride-to-be is described as a girl of rare charm and great personal beauty.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL (Samuel P. Gerson, mgr.)—James T. Powers, in "Two Little Brides," continues to amuse the audiences at this playhouse. Prominent in the cast are: Charles H. Rogers, Anna Wheaton, Hyla Allen, W. L. Wilder, Roy Purviance, Gilbert Clinton, Josephine Kirkwood and Florence Guise. Powers is, as usual, a "respectable" comedian, and his fun is clean.

AUDITORIUM (B. Ulrich, mgr.)—The Chicago Grand Opera Company, second week. Big business.

BLACKSTONE (A. J. Pilon, mgr.)—David Warfield, in "The Return of Peter Grimm," is attracting capacity audiences who find keen delight in this masterful production.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE (George Kingsbury, mgr.)—Succeeding Donald Brian, in "The Siren," Wm. Hodge opened a three week's engagement Sunday, 1, in "The Man from Home." This is announced as the final Chicago engagement for this wonderfully interesting attraction. Louis Mann comes Dec. 22, in "Elevating a Husband" for five or six weeks. "Little Boy Blue" to follow.

COLONIAL (James Jay Brady, mgr.)—Klaw & Erlanger's stupendous production of "Ben-Hur" is playing to big business.

CORT (U. J. Herrmann, mgr.)—"Fine Feathers," "Seats All Sold" sign displayed in the foyer at every performance.

GARRICK (Asher Levy, mgr.)—Miss Princess is playing to heavy patronage and grows in favor every week.

GEORGE M. COHAN'S GRAND OPERA HOUSE (Harry J. Ridings, mgr.)—"The Little Millionaire" is another ten-strike, and keeps the boys in the box office busy from morning till night.

ILLINOIS (W. J. Davis, mgr.)—Following James K. Hackett, in "The Grain of Dust," Blanche Ring opened Sunday night, 1, in "The Wall Street Girl," and the advance sale indicates an eminently successful engagement in Chicago.

LA SALLE (Harry Askin, mgr.)—Mr. Askin wears broad smiles on his face these days, for "The Girl at the Gate" is keeping up the high standard for big business and general excellence of production which has been previously established by a series of marked successes presented under the personal direction of Harry Askin.

MCVICKER'S (George C. Warren, mgr.)—Capacity audiences greeted "Way Down East" at every performance last week. Beginning Monday, 2, William A. Brady presents "Little Women" for three weeks.

OLYMPIC (Sam Lederer, mgr.)—It will not be Sam Lederer's fault if "The Million" does not heap up a lot of profits during its current Chicago engagement, for certain it is he is letting the folk in this and adjoining communities, with his novel advertising methods, know all about the show.

POWERS (Harry J. Powers, mgr.)—"Years of Discretion" is being well patronized by the elite theatregoers of Chicago and it offers a splendid evening's entertainment.

PRINCESS (Wm. A. Singer, mgr.)—"Bought and Paid For," a vital and wholesome American drama, is prospering, and there is no abatement of interest in the current engagement evident.

STUDEBAKER (E. J. Sullivan, mgr.)—"Blindness of Virtue," the current attraction, is heartily recommended for a refreshing evening at the theatre. Upon its opening, Nov. 24, it was cheered till the echoes rang through the playhouse. It is a play with a great big moral, and admirably acted.

WATSON (F. O. Peers, mgr.)—Is dark.

ZIEGFELD (W. K. Ziegfeld, mgr.)—Is dark.

PALACE MUSIC HALL (Mort H. Singer, mgr.)—Ethel Barrymore opens this afternoon, 2, for her farewell appearances in vaudeville, with J. M. Barrie's little play, "The Twelve Pound Look," and is supported by the same company that appeared with her in Chicago earlier in the season. Others on the Palace bill are: Georgette, Nichols Sisters, Two Jonleys, the Exposition Four, Ignatius Cardosh, Crouch and Welch, Belle Hathaway's Novelty.

GREAT NORTHERN HIPPODROME (Vernon C. Seaver, mgr.)—Packed and jammed at every performance is the record being made at the Great Northern Hippodrome. The bills provided by general director Vernon C. Seaver are meeting with evident satisfaction, and this week are presented Walter Gilce's Riders, Flying Valentines, Four Olfans, Alvarado's goats, Paul Beuvers, Strickland's animals, Five Juggling Jordans, Jusmana Trio, Courtenay and Janette.

ACADEMY (T. J. Carmody, mgr.)—Vaudeville.

APOLLO (R. L. Jacoby, mgr.)—Vaudeville.

ASHLAND (A. E. Weidner, mgr.)—Vaudeville.

CASINO (M. B. Schlesinger, mgr.)—Vaudeville.

COTTAGE GROVE EMPRESS (A. H. Raynor, mgr.)—Vaudeville.

The Men Who Handle Amusement Affairs in Chicago.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

This theatre is one of the oldest and best known playhouses in Chicago. It has always borne an excellent reputation, playing attractions of merit and looking after the comfort of its patrons. Thereby winning a steady clientele all its own. Situated opposite the City Hall, its central location has made it convenient of access from all parts of the city, and with its steady run of good attractions, has always enjoyed a profitable business. It was the original home of spectacular musical comedy, introduced by David Henderson, in the early '90s, and established some records for long runs that have never been broken. The house has a seating capacity of 1,432. The staff is composed of Geo. J. Kingsbury, manager; E. P. Sargent, treasurer; L. E. Snell, assistant treasurer; P. F. Murphy, doorman and head usher.

An ample stage behind the curtain line facilitates the production of elaborate scenic effects, and the equipment is thoroughly complete in every respect. The orchestra opening is 22 feet high, and 32 feet 6 inches wide. The stage is 62 feet 6 inches wide, 69 feet high and 43 feet deep. The stage crew is composed of R. Carson, carpenter; Edward Crawford, electrician; Al. Olesen, properties. The orchestra is under the direction of Sigmund Schlen.

FRANK HUNT GIVES BANQUET.

Frank Hunt, the genial landlord of the New Jackson Hotel in Chicago, made his guests happy Thanksgiving Day in tendering them, with his compliments, a banquet, followed by a dance in the large dining room, the tables having been removed to permit the festive party. It proved a very joyous occasion, and Mr. Hunt has endeavored himself to the professionals in attendance.

JAMES W. SHEA, stage carpenter with "The Girls from Missouri" Co., and Sylvia Pritchard, of the same organization, were married in St. Louis, week of Nov. 10. Geo. Hinkle, electrician of the company, and Mildred Fletcher, a member of the cast, were married in Chicago on Thanksgiving Day.

"OUR WIVES" will follow "Fine Feathers" at the Cort Theatre.

CHARLES W. COLLINS, press agent for the Palace Music Hall during the past few months, and with Mort H. Singer previously, has been appointed dramatic critic of The Inter-Ocean, a position he held once before.

NEW VAUDEVILLE SKETCH.

The success of "More Sinned Against than Usual," that burlesque on rural melodrama recently seen at the Palace Music Hall, has inspired the production of a skit of similar nature, called "And They Lived Happy Ever After." Philip Bartholomae, author of the farces "Over Night" and "Little Miss Brown," is responsible for this bit of vaudeville satire. The piece is touring over the Orpheum Circuit and will be seen in Chicago later in the season.

TWO PERFORMANCES of "The Blindness of Virtue" will be given on Wednesday, Dec. 4, afternoon and evening, under the auspices of the Chicago Women's Club, for the benefit of the Mary Thompson Hospital for Women and Children.

MARIE NELSON and RODNEY RANOUS, who won distinction as the leading players last season with T. C. Gleason's Players, will return to the College Theatre next week. The cast will be strengthened, and the splendid performance which made the College successful will again be presented. So far Edith Lyle's plans have not yet been decided. She may enter vaudeville in Chicago. If so, Gleason announces he will continue as her manager.

AARON J. JONES left for New York Saturday, Nov. 30.

FORSTER and COZAK will try out for the Association this week.

THOMAS J. QUIGLEY and ELNORA FOWLER ROBERT were married last week at Crown Point, Ind.

FLO JACOBSEN, of the Frank Clark Music Co., returned from the East last week.

BILLY REEVES, the famous London music hall performer, "dunk," will top line at the Hamlin this week.

SIDNEY SHALLMAN booked Menlo Moore's acts over the Pantages Circuit.

JOE BERNARD and HAZEL HARRINGTON report their splendid success West of St. Paul.

ARTHUR GREEN, recently with Ted Snyder, has joined Fennessey and Silver, booking acts.

Eddie Gilmore, assisting Paul Le Petrie, has made good at the New Chicago, and is booked indefinitely.

SAM BAERWITZ has enlarged his Chicago office.

W. H. JENNER, formerly manager of the Monroe, is now managing the Marlowe for the same firm.

AXEL CHRISTENSEN opened at the President Monday, 2, with eight weeks to follow, booked by Hamburger.

DAW AND RUSSELL hold a record of eighteen months at the Sheldon Theatre.

TOMMY LYMAN, character singer, remains indefinitely at the Alcazar.

EDWARDS, RYAN AND TIERNY are bound West on the Orpheum Circuit.

WENDELL PHILLIPS has been appointed leading pianist in Will Rossiter's offices.

WALTER MEAKIN brought back twenty-five new acts from the East last week.

ROSEMARY has added several new houses to Western Vaudeville Association bookings.

TELL TAYLOR BACK HOME.

Tell Taylor is in Chicago after a brief sojourn in New York, and a few days of recreation at his country estate in Ohio. The Tell Taylor offices in the Grand Opera House building are being removed from the fourth to the sixth floor, it being the intention to utilize the entire East end of that section of the building reception room will be provided for artists, and Tell is to put in a complete set of brand-new office furniture in all of the departments.

THE HIPPODROME THEATRE, at Fort Worth, Tex., which plays the Hopkins bookings, began offering six acts last week, instead of four, as in the past. The six act policy will continue indefinitely.

A large reception room will be provided for artists, and Tell is to put in a complete set of brand-new office furniture in all of the departments.

WILL G. KAUFMAN of the Kaufmans, who are playing the Hopkins Circuit, was recently ill and had to go to the hospital for an operation for appendicitis. They were forced to discontinue at the Broadway Theatre, Muskogee, Okla., and at other points.

COOGAN AND PARKS have split up. Jack Coogan has joined hands with Violinsky, and will sing songs. Eddie Parks and his wife, Grace Garnella, will do an act.

JOHN HELLGOTT, formerly the animal trainer of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, now has a bear act in vaudeville, known as Miss Hellgott's Bears. The act began a tour of the Hopkins Circuit at Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 1.

RUBEN AND REMO, the Chinese Emperors, began a tour of the Hopkins Circuit last week.

O'RILLA BARBER, Arthur Hill and company, presenting "A Strenuous Dais," are playing at the Casino, in Chicago, this week.

They will be at the Wilson and Willard, Chicago, next week. This is a sketch which is in great demand on Association time.

J. C. MATTHEWS made an offer of $1,000 to Joe Tinker, for a week at the Orpheum Theatre, in Cincinnati, providing he was engaged as manager of the Reds. Tinker's salary, which is said to have been $400 at the time, was higher when he was sought for Cincinnati.

THE STAR HIPPODROME is doing big business. A visit to that house, Nov. 29, found capacity business at the first show, and people waiting to get in for the second performance. An act was offered, and then a picture, alternating entirely through the bill.

THE HAMBURGER THEATRE had capacity business Thanksgiving Day, and ran continuous from 1.30 till 10.30. The programs were arranged with special care, and the shows seemed to please the audiences.

LOU CANTON'S "Merry Kids," Eddie Foyer, The Three Girls, Walter's Operatic Duo, Chester and Grace, Celesto and company, Frank De Lestare and company, Three Browns, Walter McCullough and company, Edward Durkin's Dog and Monkey Pantomime, and De Lacey and Wallace, are among the players playing the New York and Western Agency time.

FRANK P. FURLONG is now connected with the Hopkins Lyric Agency, and is making his headquarters at the main office in Chicago. He disposed of his theatrical interests in Nashville, Tenn., some time since.

AND STILL MORE THEATRES.

The theatre multiplication "madness" in Chicago, refuses to abate. The old Lincoln Theatre, on North Clark Street, is to be restored to use through improvements which will cost $25,000. Permits were granted last week for the erection of a $40,000 theatre in Kimbark Avenue, just north of East Sixty-third Street; a $20,000 theatre at 813-815 West Taylor Street, and a small house at 3717 Wallace Street.

BEGINNING this week "The Blindness of Virtue" will undergo three matinee performances each week at the Studebaker. The extra event will be celebrated on Friday.

The manager of the German Theatre (formerly Bush Temple) has prepared for production there Thursday night, Dec. 5, a topical musical comedy, called "The Merry Balkan War." The programmes will credit the piece to Maximilian von Gansschowsky.

The young men of the chorus in "The Siren" presented a loving cup to Joe Sanderson, one of the stars of that musical comedy. The chorus men and Miss Sanderson have been associated for three seasons. She left Saturday night to prepare to emerge as a lone star in "The Sunshine Girl."

"THE BLACK BIRDS."

This new play, in which Henry Miller will star Laura Hope Crews and H. B. Warner, will open at the Apollo, Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 5.

AUBREY STAUFFER MUSIC NOTES.

The International Harmony Four are giving their audiences an interpretation of "Just An Old Time Song" with such harmony that knocks 'em off their seats.

Perry and White have added the "Chicken Ball" with more than favorable success, getting a surprising lot of business out of this new chicken-bear song this number.

O. C. Phillips is demonstrating how "Just An Old Time Song" should be put over. When a ballad of this type is handled with a care of interpretation, with an excellent voice behind the song, Mr. Phillips is the boy to cop the coin. He is booked at the Palace shortly, and will feature the big Stauffer ballad.

Gretchen Spencer is delighting the public with the catchy, peculiar strains of the "Chicken Ball," and claims the song to be one of the most original ever published.

Elliot and Voss are two clever ones using "Chicken Ball," and they can tell you how to do the bear-hop in this number.

Dave Rose, a West Side favorite, and Harry Geer, a popular baritone, are two Chicago boys delivering the solo voices, using "Old Time Song," and, of course, they are always working.

The Imperial Trio picked out a song they felt sure of when they sang "Just An Old Time Song," and the audiences tell them they never go wrong.

There is a strong pulling power in the Stauffer ballad, and Bob Sherwood tells us when he reaches the line, "It was just a song at twilight," they sway in their seats and reach for a drink, buy the copy. And Bob is the feature of the Orpheum Trio, and he should know.

Isabella Patricola has a pretty name, and she uses a pretty song as well. It is easy to flatter both, for she is using "The Chickens' Ball."

CIRCUS NEWS

FACTS BY CHARLES ANDRESS.

DEAR CLIPPER: I am sending you here with a clipping from The Kansas City Times, giving the views of one of the honorable members of this thriving Western city on circus license, which I trust you will find of sufficient interest to circus men, and, incidentally, city officials, together with my comment, for space in your most valuable publication.

The Kansas City Times published the following:

"Alderman Isaac Taylor would bar circuses from Kansas City. 'They are barred in Texas,' he told the upper house of the council. 'Every show season there is a movement to juggle the license ordinance. The same people who last year tried to fix a license of $50 a car for certain large shows are now asking us to reduce the license from a maximum of $800 to $200 and under.'

"These circuses take sometimes as high as $30,000 out of the city. They carry their own commissaries, sell clothes to their own employees, buy only a few meat scraps and a little hay and corn while here. I am informed that they collect a percentage from the crooks, 'con' men and fakirs that follow them."

"The ordinance, which had been called out of the committee by Alderman W. C. Culbertson, was re-referred."

"If this alderman, Mr. Taylor, only knew (as I do from a practical experience of nearly half a century) how absolutely ridiculous his comments were, and how untrue all of his 'glib' statements sound to all intelligent people who read them, he would have consulted some one who knew, instead of jumping at unreasonable conclusions."

"In the first place he says the circuses are barred in Texas, when the real facts are that Texas has reduced the high license and is holding out inducements to circuses to come, and the season 1912 saw more circuses in Texas than any year since the war. Texas has been no exception to the Southern States on high license, which dates back to the Civil War. I doubt very much if even the present day circus-men know why the Southern States have almost prohibitive license laws, and for the first time I will give the real reason for prohibition."

"Before the war the South was very glad to have circuses, and the licenses were practically nothing, or very nominal, but after the war, of course, there was an unkind feeling for everything from the North, and as there were no other amusements except Northern ones, they not only wished to keep them out on account of personal feelings, but other reasons. The South felt poor, and knowing how much the people enjoyed the circus, the officials—State, county and city—united in making such license laws as they thought would be impossible for any circus to meet, and hoped to keep the circus from the South for some time. But the people and newspapers began to ask for the circus, and the circus managers were equally anxious to put in the fall seasons in the South, and this is the way they did it. After the regular circus season would end they would cut down the daily expense by letting out some of the most expensive acts and raising the prices to $1, and in those days gambling was licensed in most every State and city, and the circus managers took advantage of this and took a bunch of shell workers and confidence games along for those who wished to venture. Of course, this made it possible for the circus to meet the high license."

"There are none of the circuses now in existence that practiced this method. As soon as the Ringlings began to be big enough to go South they made a feature of charging in the South the same price as in the Northern States, fifty cents, and positively no gambling, and by that time the bitter feeling against 'The Yankee' was wearing off and the Ringling way of doing business helped wonderfully. Their maxim was, 'No North, No South,' and in my opinion this did more to bring about a kindly feeling than anything ever did in this direction, and the license in most every instance has been reduced in justice to all."

"But, returning to Kansas City, and Alderman Taylor, who handles the truth in a very careless manner, especially when he says 'The circus sometimes takes as high as $30,000 out of the city.' In the first place, no circus ever took in over half of this amount, including every possible source of income, and from the way Mr. Taylor would make it appear, the circus does not leave or cause to be left any money in town. Now, let us see about that."

"Almost every industry in town is patronized by the circus itself and the one thousand people it brings along. The hotels are patronized by the two hundred people it requires in advance of the show. On the day of the show many of the higher salaried people with the show, including artists, staff officials, etc., patronize the best hotels, while the lesser paid people patronize restaurants, stores, saloons, billiard halls, etc. The live and feed men are well patronized—feed for the horses and animals alone amounting sometimes to over $600, and never lower than about $400. Now come the bill-posters, the railroads, the printing, the newspapers and licenses, and a hundred other things that draw the money from the treasury. And last, but not least, patronized, standing that the big circus of to-day is conducted on strictly honorable lines, and its only revenue is the sale of tickets, nearly everyone (there being but few exceptions to the rule) that transacts business with the circus expects to receive a liberal supply of tickets and, believe me, Kansas City officials are no exception to the rule. Now, Mr. Taylor, or any other official who has the same vindictive views about the circus, does this look like the circus taking out $30,000 in one day from Kansas City?"

"I speak from a practical experience of forty-five years in circus and theatrical business, the last twenty years of which was spent with the two biggest amusement institutions in the world, i. e., the Ringling Bros. and the Barnum & Bailey Show. Therefore, I do not get my mouth filled up with sour grapes or jump at wild conclusions, as does Mr. Taylor."

"My dealings have been with officials from U. S. officials at Washington, diplomats, governors, congressmen, State, city and county officials, and therefore I am willing to place myself and my argument before the public against Mr. Taylor, who would like to build a stone wall around Kansas City and exclude the greatest amusement in the world."

"I am in retirement, and therefore I am entirely unbiased, and have no axe to grind, and write this from no other motive than justice to all."

"Suppose Kansas City should pass a prohibitive license, and all the big circuses should sign an agreement to leave the city out for a certain number of years, how long would it be before the people would begin to ask why? and the papers would begin to chronicle the voice of the people. Then the aldermen, who took the greatest amusement in the world from the people, would see their mistake."

"Did the Kansas City alderman ever stop to think that it costs from $5,000 to $7,500 a day to run a big circus, and that it brings a school in natural history right to your very doors, and educates the children in this direction more in one day than they can learn in books in a year? Then again, the poor man can not afford to go to the theatre and pay $1.50 a seat for a number of his family, but he and his family live in fond hope and expectation for circus day, when he can mingle with the rich and poor on equal ground. Think it over!"

"Mr. Andress has recently finished a 10,000 mile trip overland in a big Chalmers roadster, and in almost every city was entertained by officials and friends, and the papers were profuse in their articles about the old vet.—Ed.]

AUSTRALIA'S FIRST WILD WEST

(Special to THE CLIPPER.)

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. Col. Wm. A. Lavelle was a welcome caller at the Western Bureau of THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, Chicago, upon the eve of his interesting departure for Australia, and in an interesting way discussed the spirit of a fight of the Antipodes as director of the Wild West exhibition with the Bud Atkinson Shows, to open in Sydney, Dec. 15.

If the writer mistakes not, Col. Lavelle will have the distinction of introducing for the first time in Australia a congress of American rough riders, cowboys, ranchmen and Indians. And it is apropos at this time to congratulate Manager Atkinson and his associates upon their happy selection in placing the genial colonel at the head of the Wild West department.

In referring to his plans, Colonel Lavelle said: "It has been my pleasure to assist in entertaining American audiences for many years, but I am not unmindful of the heavy responsibilities before me in putting together an entertainment for the edification of the people of Australia. To them the Wild West which we will give them their first glimpse of the early days of our Western frontier, the first insight into the life and customs of the American Indian. Is not the prospect pleasing? I firmly believe that, more or less laded with other forms of outdoor entertainment, the Antipodeans will welcome it with open arms, and so confident is Mr. Atkinson in this belief that he has practically given me carte blanche in the purchase of equipment, and has surrounded me with a coterie of exceptional talent and a band of representative Indians."

While the Wild West exhibition will naturally be more or less conventional, it will be presented in a vigorous, snappy manner. We are taking over several champion bucking horse riders, and there will be the usual roping contests, Indian war dances, games and pastimes, and a big spectacle in which all members of the aggregation will participate. The presence of American marksmen gives a world-wide celebrity, and trick and fancy shooting will have a place on the program. Altogether I am inclined to believe we will create a sensation."

While many in the United States are familiar with Colonel Lavelle's career, it will undoubtedly interest the Australian readers of THE OLD RELIABLE to learn something of his history.

COL. LAVELLE'S LIFE STORY. Colonel William A. Lavelle was born in Butler, Pa., on March 27, 1847, of Irish parentage. His father, James Lavelle, and his mother, Anna, were both natives of Innishow, Donegal County, Ireland. As would be indicated by the name, the Lavelle family is of French-Irish lineage. Lavelle's ancestors played an important part in the uprisings of 1798, in Ireland; he comes from militant stock. Colonel Lavelle's countenance shows the French strain.

Up to the breaking out of the Civil War, Lavelle lived in Pennsylvania, at Butler, and in 1861, at the first call for three-year men, ran away from home to be a soldier, but he was brought back by his father, as he was under age.

However, at the last call for three-year men, he succeeded in enlisting in the Sixty-first Pennsylvania Volunteers, then serving with the Army of the Potomac. After three months' active service at the front, a call came from headquarters to deliver a message of great importance and much danger. Young men were sent from various regiments to Washington to be detailed for this important service, and from the number Lavelle was chosen by President Abraham Lincoln for the task. The mission was fraught with great danger, and necessitated the utmost ingenuity and caution. President Lincoln gave Lavelle a message to be delivered verbally (he could not carry any papers) to General John Pope, stationed then before Richmond. To deliver this message from the commander-in-chief of the Union armies, it was necessary for Lavelle to pass through the Confederate lines. Lavelle delivered the message, returned to Washington and received the congratulations of President Lincoln upon the successful performance of his duty. Lincoln gave Lavelle a medal of honor for this service.

A few weeks later Lavelle joined the Army of the Tennessee, and was detailed under the command of General Sherman for secret service work. Sent into the rebel lines to ascertain the condition of the Confederate forces previous to the battle of Chickamauga and Lookout Mountain, Lavelle passed through the Union lines, swam the Tennessee River at Chattanooga, the pickets on both sides firing on him, the Union soldiers on one side, the Confederates on the other (the Union soldiers actually were not acquainted with Lavelle's identity or his mission). Lavelle was captured by the Confederate pickets and thrown into prison at Chattanooga, which had a record then of being nearly as bad as either Libby or Andersonville. Thrust into a dirty cell, Lavelle spent the night in a wet cloth, and the morning at daybreak was ordered into the prison yard for inspection. Lavelle confesses that for once in his life he experienced the sensation of real fear. The Union soldier prisoners were formed into line in the prison yard, and Lavelle, under suspicion as a Union scout or spy, was marched along in front of them. The Confederate commander in charge of the prison figured that perhaps one or some of the Union prisoners might recognize Lavelle. Such recognition would have meant his doom, for had one of the Union soldiers smiled or spoken to Lavelle, or recognized him in any way, it would have meant even a hearing of a drum-head court martial. Lavelle passed through the ordeal, none of the soldiers recognizing him. After a lot of questioning he was turned loose by the officer of the day, Capt. Jim Sutton, a great big, good-hearted fellow, with whom, after years, the colonel was pleased to fraternize, and to whom he always refers as his "rebel friend." Captain Sutton died in 1909.

Turned loose by the Confederate commander, Lavelle wandered about in a dazed, parentally aimless manner through the outposts, in and about Chattanooga, and succeeded in getting the exact situation and condition of the Confederate forces stationed at that point. Working his way through the Confederate lines, he succeeded in reaching the Federal army and reported the condition of the rebel forces to General Sherman, some days before the battle of Chickamauga and Lookout Mountain. Lavelle remained with the Army of the Tennessee until after Sherman's march from Atlanta to the sea. After reaching Savannah with General Sherman, Lavelle was detailed back to the Army of the Southwest, where he remained until the end of the Civil War, being discharged at Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

For about a year and a half Lavelle served as an outrider with wagon trains between Springfield, Mo., and Abilene, Kan., the old Santa Fe trail.

In 1867 Lavelle re-enlisted in the regular army, for service in the West, serving three years in various capacities as soldier and in the secret service. He was stationed at Fort Leavenworth, and performed several difficult missions and led scouting parties.

On the 27th day of next March Colonel William A. Lavelle will be sixty-six years of age. Time has dealt lightly with the colonel, and although his long, flowing hair is tinged with gray, and in spite of the strenuous years he has experienced in the service of his country—experiences fraught with adventure—the colonel retains the elasticity of youth—his eyes are bright, his handshake firm, and he is, withal, a specimen of rugged American manhood.

The colonel is a dead shot, both with the pistol and the rifle. As a buffalo hunter he enjoys a wide reputation on the frontier. He is cool in moments of danger, reserved, steady and deliberate. Colonel Lavelle is of a modest disposition, but underlying that mobile exterior slumbers the spirit of a fighter. Among the men who have fought for their country, performed deeds of valor and risked their lives, Colonel Lavelle deserves a niche in the Hall of Fame. The colonel is particularly happy in his family life. A wife and two daughters, sixteen and eighteen years of age, respectively, help to brighten his existence. All Indian tribes know Bill Lavelle. To him the chiefs refer as Long Hair. Long hair, with the Indians, is considered a mark of bravery.

Colonel Lavelle is a perfect specimen of manhood. He stands 6 feet 1 inch, his stocking feet, erect as an arrow, straight-limbed, eyes bright, long, flowing hair, and as vigorous as a man of forty; a Beau Brummel in his everyday attire, and yet retaining the atmosphere of his early days at the front and upon the plains, with his big slouch hat, turned down collar, his stock tie and his mustache and imperial.

The onward march of civilization is fast wiping out the types of the Wild West. Our frontier towns are taking on the importance of real commercial centres. The red man is passing. The time is not far distant when the real type of the Western frontiersmen shall have passed out of existence altogether. Lavelle stands to-day as one of the foremost figures among those who represent a fast disappearing regime. WARREN A. PATRICK.

FRANK A. ROBBINS' WINTER QUARTERS.

(BREMEN AVENUE, ST. LOUIS, MO.)

Since our season closed, our trainers have been busily engaged breaking new stock and improving the acts already broke. Prof. Joe Beris, in four weeks, added new tricks to our Liberty act of six black stallions, and perfected the others, so that they are without question one of the greatest Liberty acts ever seen. They are working vaudeville, and being rapidly booked by the largest and best theatres in the country.

The elephants, under the direction of Prof. Wm. Thompson, in a new and up-to-date act, are also working steadily and giving great satisfaction.

Our wagons, all being new, or practically so, need so little repairing that we are having it done by local shops, and all will be ready to paint by Jan. 1, when the painters, decorators, etc., will commence.

We are side by side with the Rhoda Royal Show. In the different buildings, there are four rings, each show having two rings, and twenty men and women trainers work eight hours each day. Over a hundred animals are being trained for new acts. So rapid and wonderful is the work being done that it amazes the old trainers.

St. Louis is a big center for showmen. Among the visitors here are Col. Cummings of the Young Buffalo and Cummins' Wild West; Chas. Sparks, of the Sparks Show; Fred Beckman, of the California Frank Wild West, and many others. The weather is mild; so far, not even one cold day, in fact, we have never had a day when the animals have to be kept in the animal houses. The show will open here in April, and although the Frank A. Robbins Show has been the equal of the best for nearly a third of a century, it will, in 1913, far surpass in size and quality and features all previous efforts.

COL. SEAVER WILL SUPERVISE.

Regarding the Young Buffalo Bill Show for next season, Col. Vernon C. Seaver officially announces that Colonel Vernon C. Seaver has made no definite arrangements as to the executive staff of his Young Buffalo Bill Show, for the season of 1913, due largely to the fact that his theatrical interests have taken up all of his time recently, having opened the Great Northern Hippodrome, in Chicago, which now is systematized so as to permit him to take care of his other interests.

In view of the above the announcement that "Alken goes with Seaver," is incorrect. Colonel Seaver expects to be in New York the week of Dec. 2, for the purpose of taking up matters pertaining to his Young Buffalo Bill Show.

The show will be under his exclusive supervision.

(Special to THE CLIPPER.)

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 30. John G. Robinson has been making frequent trips to and from Chicago of late, being called to the Windy City to look after his big animal acts now playing Hippodrome and vaudeville engagements in the West, and looking over his zoological exhibit at the Fair store. In a recent interview Mr. Robinson stated that he had thoroughly enjoyed his "vacation" from the circus work, and that his ventures in vaudeville had proven pleasant and most profitable. He further emphatically confirmed the report, exclusively published in THE NEW YORK CLIPPER recently, that the John Robinson Ten Big Shows would go on the road again next Spring. It is presumed, therefore, that he will shortly contract with acts and arrange for features for 1913.

GENTRY BROS. BUSY.

(Special to THE CLIPPER.)

BLOOMINGTON, IND., Nov. 30. While the Gentry Bros. are extremely reticent regarding their plans for the season of 1913, a visit to their Winter quarters, in this city, makes it easily apparent that they intend to make many improvements for next summer's tour. The Gentry Bros. were the pioneers of the "dog and pony circus" in America, and have amassed a fortune and built up a reputation for providing entertainment, novel and clean. They are reputed to be the largest real estate holders in this city. It has not as yet been officially announced whether they will have one or two shows on the road next year.

FRANK BROWN NOT CLOWNING.

The story of Frank Brown clowning with the Tony Lowande Jr. Show was evidently published in another paper through a misunderstanding. Frank Brown, the well known circus manager, has been and is man-aging his own amphitheatre at Buenos Aires, in a recent issue of THE CLIPPER. Among the acts playing for Mr. Brown in October were: Alice and Armand; Troupe Klout-shoma, Forreux and Manette; Fisher and Quintana; Hostia de la Plata, the Marrott Troupe; Mile, Clotilde, Cardona and Scarpini; Leo Rosales, and a pantomime entitled "La Tribulacion al Inaugurar un Cafe Bar."

DAVIS SERVES BANQUET.

Arthur Davis, for a number of years chief of the commissary department for some of the larger circuses, has for the past year occupied the important position of manager of the employees' restaurant, at the Hotel La Salle, in Chicago. It is the duty of Mr. Davis to provide the daily cuisine for 1,250 individuals who are employed by the Hotel La Salle, one of America's leading hostels, and he has so systematized his department that it has occasioned widespread comment among hotel men. Thanksgiving dinner was served to the La Salle employees in a rather novel manner. Those who were unable to get away were served in their respective sections, i. e., the one hundred employees in the engine department dined in the engine room; the laundry workers, in the laundry, etc. The following was the Thanksgiving menu:

THANKSGIVING DINNER TO EMPLOYEES.
Olives, Blue Points, Pickles, Celery, Chicken Mulligatawny, Boiled Lake Trout, Roast Turkey, Macaroni Dressing, Candied Yams, Mexican Salad, Boiled or Mashed Potatoes, Stewed Corn, Stewed Tomatoes, Pumpkin Pie, Assorted Fruits, Ice Cream and Cake, Tea, Coffee or Milk.

WILL FRANKLIN TROUPE AGAIN.

There is considerable speculation in circus circles whether or no W. E. Franklin will re-enter upon active service in the tented field next season. Since his retirement as general manager of the Sells-Floto Shows, Mr. Franklin has been taking his ease in his palatial home in Valparaiso, Ind., and unless he should find an opportunity to become financially interested in, as well as direct the movements of, a traveling amusement institution, it is, according to his friends, hardly possible that he will again go into harness. It is a pleasure at this time to chronicle the fact that W. E. Franklin helped to build up the prestige of the Wallace Circus and the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows, his connection with these aggregations, as general agent, dating back many years. Not a few of the successful agents now with the leading tent shows received their early training under Mr. Franklin's able direction. Prior to his retirement he was dean of the circus agents in America.

HEBER BROS. ACTIVE.

The Heber Bros. are buying animals of all kinds, and are adding a menagerie in connection with their circus and Wild West show. They recently received a shipment of leopards, bears, panthers and wolves from South America and Mexico; also new and larger tents and additional cages and wagons. More extensive equestrian acts, latest aerial work stunts of all kinds, and the trained wild animals will be featured in 1913 with the Heber Bros.' Greater Show. Reginald C. Heber is general manager of the Heber Bros.' Shows, at 312 East Seventeenth Avenue, Columbus, O.

The Winter quarters present a lively scene these days, where scene painting, building, etc., is being rushed, and the show printing house is busy printing flashy advertising matter for the coming season.

SCHRINERS' CIRCUS.

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Mecca Temple, New York, gave a circus performance at their regular session on Wednesday night, Nov. 27, at the Twelfth Regiment Armory, New York City.

James Dutton, assisted by two handsomely groomed young ladies, in a new and beautiful equestrian performance, was the crowning feature of the entertainment.

Lu Lu Temple, of Philadelphia, came over by special train to visit Mecca. The delegation numbered eight hundred, including the famous Lu Lu Band.

CIRCUS WEEK AT THE DE KALB.

This is circus week at the big Brooklyn house, all of the acts being of the circus kind. Spica's Venetian Band is especially engaged to play the co-cert. A parade across stage will be a feature. The acts are: Cadieux, on the bounding wire; Reb-Danny O'Brien, the Clown's Frolics, headed by linder's pigs, the Seabert Sisters, carrying act; a trained animal diversion, the Duffin-Red Kay Troupe, in their casting act; the Bobker Ben All Troupe of Arabs, and the pantomime, "Love in a Tub."

GEORGE DYNAN CONVALESCENT.

The many friends of George Dynan, who for a number of years has been associated with the Sells-Floto and other circus aggregations, is able, after four and one-half months in the hospital, to be out and around, and will probably troupe next Summer. He is stopping at the Wellington, in Chicago.

LATEST FROM CHICAGO.

(Special to THE CLIPPER.)

Dec. 3. James Patterson confirms report, exclusively published in THE N. Y. CLIPPER, that he will put out a circus this coming season, in association with Dickey, of Wild West fame, the aggregation to be known as the Great Patterson Trained Animal Shows and Dickey's Wild West Combined. Dickey is now in Kansas City purchasing draft stock. The winter quarters of the new show will be at Paola, Kan. None of the executive staff has been engaged. The Great Patterson Carnival Shows will go out as usual.

W. H. Rice, of Rice & Dore Shows, arrived in Chicago to-day from Beaumont, Tex., to meet the State Fair managers in session here.

RYAN ON PACIFIC COAST.

Tom Ryan, who has been identified as manager of the side show with the Yankee Robinson Circus, and Mrs. Ryan are spending the winter in California. It is reported that Ryan is breaking in a big performing seal act for the circus, a vaudeville tour, and for the Panama-Pacific Exposition in Frisco.

CAL TOWERS SLATED.

It is rumored in Chicago that Cal Towers, the veteran side show manager and orator, has been engaged to manage the Annex with the Yankee Robinson Circus, season 1913. For many years Cal was with the John Robinson Ten Big Shows and other leading organizations, and his friends in the circus profession are legion.

TRAINING BEASTS IN DENVER.

A big trained animal act will be one of the startling sensations with the Sells-Floto Shows next season. It is said that an attempt will be made to get entirely away from the stereotyped performances of this character.

WARREN TRAVERS WITH B. & B.

Joseph Shea, the vaudeville agent, has booked Warren Travers with the Barnum & Bailey Circus for next season. Mr. Travers does a spectacular strong act.

ROB SIMONS, contracting agent with the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, season 1912, re-located headquarters in Chicago last week. He is managing the Galety Girls Co., which played to great business at the Columbia.

JOE ROSENTHAL, manager of Advertising Car No. 1, of the Young Buffalo Wild West, and Colonel Cummins Far East, is spending the winter in Chicago.

KARL, the juggler, has been booked for the Pabillon Show, Havana, Cuba, by Richard Pitrot. He will sail Dec. 5.

STOCK NEWS

WILBUR-SACRAY STOCK NOTES.

We are in our eighth week in Iowa without a loser. All repertoire companies in Northern Iowa are reporting good business. The cast comprises: Rilla McMillan, B. B. Boothe and wife, R. D. Sacray, R. L. Wilbur and Frank Robinson.

THE Orpheum Players, in Jersey City, N. J., closes next week. The company has been too expensive, and a cheaper one will be organized.

ADRA AINSLEE, Allen F. Holbar, Winfield De Long, Harry Wilgus and Eugene La Rue are with the Dorner Stock Co., at the Olympic, Cincinnati, O.

LESLIE WILCOX and ISABELLE GILBERT were married Monday, Nov. 25, at Fort Worth, Tex. The contracting parties were members of the Frank North Stock Co., at Fort Worth, but closed 30.

THE HARRIS-PARKINSON Co. closed a summer season of twenty-seven weeks at Helena, Ark., Nov. 18. The company opened May 2 at Bloomington, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Robt. H. Harris left for Hot Springs, where they will spend the winter, returning to Bloomington in March, when activity for next summer's work begins.

JOE WEBER'S STOCK CO.—Joe Weber, who recently returned to New York from Saratoga Lake, is engineering a dramatic stock at the Mohawk Theatre, Schenectady, N. Y., which is a big success.

THE MALLEY-DENISON Co. is appearing at the Opera House, Lawrence, Mass., week of Dec. 2. In George M. Cohan's musical comedy success, "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," with Arthur Hebeus as Tom Bennett; Jack Chandler as Kid Burns, and Louise Marshall as Mary.

FERDINAND TIDMARSH scored heavily as Buckley, the head coach in "Strongheart," last week with the Malley-Denison Co., at Lawrence, Mass.

WINNIE ST. CLAIR HER OWN COMPANY

NEW VAUDEVILLE ACTS

Edwina Barry and Company, in "The Home Breaker."

KEITH'S UNION SQUARE, MATINEE, Nov. 29. Edwina Barry had the opportunity of putting on her new farce comedy playlet here at the Monday evening show of Nov. 25, replacing Middleton, Spellmeyer and company, who closed on account of illness after the opening matinee.

"The Home Breaker" was written by Jimmie Barry, and he used his pen cunningly in writing the material of the sketch as close about Edwina as possible.

Miss Barry plays the role of Dotty Plum-daffy, a housemaid, who comes to the home of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Haskell with a record of broken hearts to her credit, and a photo of each poor soul who "fell" for her kissable red lips (Dotty had always made it a point to get a picture of every man who kissed her).

She captures the uncle of Mr. Haskell, and later adds the young minister to her photo collection, besides arousing jealousy between the religious couple that very nearly ends disastrously, when she tells of a lady calling on the husband, and of a gentleman calling on the wife. The two visitors, however, prove to be unexpected relations of the Haskells, and they return just in time to avoid a separation of their niece and nephew, and also prevent Dotty from packing away the furniture in her trunk.

Miss Barry's ridiculous make-up for the servant role is as laughable as her mannerisms and portrayal of the part.

The sketch was finely received, and ran about nineteen minutes, full stage.

Miss Barry's company includes: William Richards, Billy O'Day, Theodora Dudley and Isabelle Colridge.

Porter J. White and Company.

PROCTOR'S FIFTH AVENUE, MATINEE, Dec. 2. Presenting for the first time in New York a thrilling one act episode, entitled "Scandal."

Porter J. White and his company earned a big hit at the Monday matinee here. The program does not state the author's name, but whoever he is, deserves much credit for the clever manner in which he has handled the several different characters. The sketch is interesting and holds attention from start to finish. The story tells about a play that has been stolen and presented, and is witnessed by the original writer, who visits the pirate and denounces him in no quiet manner. To make the pirate confess, the author has a friend impersonate one of the characters in the play, and, in an argument about being shamefully insulted, has the pirate confess he stole the copy. The sketch is written on entirely original lines and the different characters portrayed in a meritorious manner.

Porter J. White, as the author, gave his usual excellent performance. The cast: Nicholas Droad.....Mr. White
Jeffrey Toole.....John C. Tremayne
Horace Tredder.....Harry Stephens
Helen.....Adelaide Fairchild
Jack.

Roatino, Brennan and Company, in "Trixie and the Amateur."

PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET, Nov. 28. "Trixie and the Amateur," a new sketch written by Florence Brennan, was given its first metropolitan tryout at this house, and met with instantaneous success. The act is well written, nicely costumed and admirably played by the authoress and Adelina Roatino.

In "Trixie and the Amateur" Miss Brennan has penned a story dealing with the trials and tribulations of a performer who is trying to rise from the amateur ranks, and is very true to life. The act holds the attention of the audience throughout, and is marked with many fine lines and situations.

Miss Roatino, who plays the amateur, looked charming in a beautiful costume of lavender, and her rendering of a classical operatic selection and "My Hero," marked her an artist of exceptional talent.

Miss Brennan kept the audience in good humor throughout with her bright lines, which she put over in real bit form. William Zinnell, as the stage manager, gave a fine performance. The act runs about eighteen minutes.

Oscar Lorraine and Company.

AUDUBON, WEDNESDAY EVENING, Nov. 27. Oscar Lorraine, whose playing on the violin has been praised many times in THE CLIPPER's columns, was one of the performers selected to appear on the special bill for the opening of William Fox's new Audubon Theatre. He introduced a pretty young woman in his act. They appear in one and sing a love song.

Neither Mr. Lorraine or his "company" are gifted with voices. She is at her best when she impersonates a little girl. Her "voice" is well suited to this kind of song, and in appearance she looks like a girl of thirteen. But she lends nothing to the act. She is pretty to look at—that's all. Lorraine's violin playing wins favor for the act. About eight minutes, in one.

"The Graphophone Girl."

KEITH'S UNION SQUARE, EVENING, Dec. 2. Adelina Francis introduced something new to the Square patrons, but by no means new to vaudeville. Miss Francis has perfected a couple of records (in her own voice) on a "talking" machine, and uses same as a "partner," singing duets and exchanging a line of patter that pleased the already enthusiastic audience quite highly. Miss Francis did not neglect recording an encore speech on the machine, and she used it.

About eleven minutes, in one.

FLASHES AND DASHES.

SELDEN MILLER gave a second song recital at Rumford Hall, Nov. 26. REGINALD WERRENATH, baritone singer, made his debut at Aeolian Hall, Nov. 26, in a song recital.

At the concert of the Voice Symphony Orchestra, in Carnegie Hall, night of Nov. 26, Arthur Phillips, who sang last season with Oscar Hammerstein's London Opera Co., made his debut here.

CONSTANCES COLLIER, who appeared in "Thala" two years ago, obtained a verdict for $2,000, on Nov. 26, against Joseph M. Gaites, producer of the play, from a jury before Justice Gavegan, on the ground of breach of contract.

HANS S. LENNE, also Melville Bills, were discharged in bankruptcy Nov. 25, by Judge Mayer.

GEORGE C. DOUGHERTY, Charles Meller and Leander Richardson have incorporated the Beofix Co. to present exhibitions under patent process.

MARY GARDEN returned to New York Nov. 25, ready to sing in opera and concert. Miss Garden made her American re-appearance at a concert on Nov. 26, with Ysaye, the violinist, at Carnegie Hall.

The first of a series of special matinees announced by John E. Kellard, during his engagement in the Garden Theatre, will be "The Merchant of Venice," on Wednesday, Dec. 4. Mr. Kellard will play Shylock.

THE Marguise of Queensbury has become a playwright, according to Paul Scott, play broker, who announces that he has accepted a four act satire on the English "400," which the titled author has named "The Light."

THE English and American Grand Opera Co. has been incorporated by Elmer T. Woodbury, Hunter De Bouvier and Jane Seybold, to present dramatic and operatic productions.

ETHEL KELLY, the dancer, who appeared in "A Winsome Widow," at the Moulin Rouge, last summer, has been added to the cast of "Follies of 1912," at the same theatre.

MEMBERS of "The Merry Countess" Co. have arranged for an ice carnival at St. Nicholas rink, Sunday evening, Dec. 8. The rink will be decorated by the chorus girls, and supper will be served.

WILLIAM HARRIS, who again is actively interested in theatrical productions, left for a vacation at French Springs, Ind. Nov. 28. James Forbes, playwright, and Edgar Selwyn, who is associated with Mr. Harris, and William Harris Jr., in the management of "The Yellow Jacket," were of the party.

NORMAN McKINLEY, the English actor, is coming to the United States, under the direction of Winthrop Ames, and will make his first New York appearance in "Rutherford and Son," by Githa Sowerby.

THE Authors and Composers' Production Co. of Brooklyn has been incorporated by Wm. B. Haskins, Helen M. Haskins and Francis H. Nichols.

CHARLES FROHMAN received on Nov. 27 a cable from Haddon Chambers, and another from Sir Beerbohm Tree, stating that the playwright and the actor-manager would sail for New York, 30, on the S. S. Caronia. Mr. Chambers is coming to America with a new play intended for production by Mr. Frohman this winter.

JOSEPH CAWTHORN on Nov. 27 received the manuscript of his part, Floot, an ex-four-wheeler driver, that he will have in "The Sunshine Girl," with Julia Sanderson. "The Sunshine Girl" will formally go into rehearsal in two weeks.

REHEARSALS of "Somewhere, Else," a musical fantasy by Avery Hopwood and Gustav Luder, which Henry W. Savage will produce late in December, have already begun. Frank Smithson and Frederic Rycoff have the choruses in hand, while the composer himself is directing the practice of the principals.

IVY TROUTMAN has been engaged for an important part in "The Girl at the Gate."

OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN has petitioned the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Co. for a partial release from that part of his contract prohibiting him from giving opera in this city for the period of ten years from March, 1910.

DURING the matinee performance of "The Whip," at the Manhattan Opera House, Saturday, Nov. 30, Dion Titheradge, who plays the part of the jockey, was painfully, but not seriously, injured through the action of his horse, which butted his head into Titheradge just before the race scene.

CHING LING FOO will appear at Hammerstein's next Monday, according to the following notice: "William Hammerstein postponed his trip to Europe until later this month. The Co-operative Circuit will lay off until he returns."

THE COLONIAL, Albany, N. Y., will be opened this month by Stacy & Perrin, with vaudeville.

FRANK K. LIEB was taken to Bellevue Hospital last week, suffering from a nervous breakdown. Mr. Lieb was formerly with "The County Chairman" Co.

D. BATES and JACK NORWORTH, at the conclusion of their engagement with the Weber & Fields Co., will return to vaudeville, on the United time.

SEYMOUR and DUPREE have returned to the West.

KATHRYN KIDDER, in "The Washerwoman Duchess."

KEITH'S UNION SQUARE, EVENING, Dec. 2. Kathryn Kidder, who created the role of Mme. Sans-Gene, made her appearance in the realms of vaudeville at this house, matinee of above date, and the tabloid of the original piece, under the title of "The Washerwoman Duchess," was delightfully acted in its entirety.

The foundation of the sketch tells of Count de Mournay's having been discovered coming from the bedroom of Emperor Napoleon's wife, and how the Emperor followed the supposed degenerate count to the room of Mme. Sans-Gene (where the action of the piece takes place).

Hearing her husband, Marshal Lefebvre, entering the house, the washerwoman duchess conceals the count behind the window-curtains until her husband retires to his room, after threatening what he would do to an unfaithful wife like the Empress. Then Count de Mournay attempts to make an escape without explaining his reason for visiting Mme. Sans-Gene's apartment "at such an hour of the night." But she calls her husband, and before the Emperor Napoleon arrives at the Lefebvre home, the Count is again hidden in another room.

To prove that the Empress and herself are innocent of any wrong, Mme. Sans-Gene calls the count, and he explains the reason of his visit to Napoleon's wife and to Sans-Gene's room very satisfactorily, while the Emperor and Marshal overhear from their hiding place in the room.

Napoleon is satisfied and promises to obey Mme. Sans-Gene's command, and beg the Empress' pardon immediately, while Lefebvre embraces his own good wife.

Miss Kidder did her work charmingly, and the many witty lines directed at the Emperor were delightfully amusing to her audience.

Walter Wilson, Mitchell Harris and Frank Woolfe gave capital support, and "The Washerwoman Duchess" rung out success from curtain to curtain. It is well staged, and furnishes "quite proper" vaudeville entertainment.

About twenty minutes, full stage.

Stepp, Allman and King.

KEITH'S UNION SQUARE, EVENING, Dec. 2. Louis Stepp and John King are offering a new act down here this week, with a new member, James Allman, in the place of the former third party of the trio that set vaudeville boys for a while not so long ago.

The boys are doing sort of a comedy sketch entitled "The Phoney Photographer," but we'd enjoy them much more doing the cabaret stuff, in one.

Stepp works straight, King does a "Birdy Birdy" character, while Allman cleverly eased over the big share of the comedy in black face make-up. He possesses a fairly good singing voice.

The performers are three young men and a seal. The young men and the seal swim around in the tank, the feature of the act being the length of time the men stay under water. Eight minutes, full stage.

Lydia and Albino.

COLONIAL, MONDAY, DEC. 2. This act from the European music halls was finely received in their artistic and showy equilibrium work, at the matinee here of Dec. 2.

Miss Lydia is a tall, beautiful woman, who does all the difficult equilibrium work, while M. Albino is the understander. She works with a grace and charm that go a long way toward bringing success to the act, and when showiness is considered in acts of this kind, America must bow to the foreign importation.

Miss Lydia did all the feats of posturing affected by male performers in similar acts, and she was a pleasant figure to look upon, arrayed in white silk dressings.

Their finish, with a lyre-shaped arrangement, held upon the shoulders of M. Albino, upon which Miss Lydia performed several feats of posturing, closing with some fifty whirling gyrations upon its upper bar, brought to a close one of the best acts, in its way, seen hereabouts in many a season.

Old Timer.

The Belmonts.

COLUMBIA, NEW YORK, DEC. 1. Disclosed by the spotlights, suspended from the flying rings, this exceptionally graceful couple of acrobats formed a fine picture against their green plush drop, handsomely draped with a red marquee and gathered curtains. Attired in black, they went through a routine of clever ring tricks, also balancing on the ground and on the traps. It was voted a very taking act. The apparatus was also attractive.

Proctor's Fifth Avenue Bill.

FOR WEEK OF DEC. 9. When speaking of headline bills don't skip away from the ones Manager Gus McCune has sewed up for his patrons' delight for next week. It's a corker with a capital C. There will be Irene Franklin, our own gifted little character comedienne, assisted by that exponent of the piano, Bert Green. Miss Franklin will return here with a new and varied repertoire of songs and humor, and will win more laurels. Street Barnes, the traveling monologist, will continue to win his way further into the hall of popularity with new and witty comedy stuff; May Tully, assisted by a most capable company, will add to the strength of this "bill par excellence" in her laughable one act comedy, entitled "The Battle of Freedom." Ed. Wynn and Edmund Russell are two real comedians, and their "Joy and Gloom" skit is a favorite in vaudeville's brightest lane. Then there will be the Musical Lasses, a bunch of feminine beauty, whose musical talents have put them away up in the merit book of the "big time." Sunny and Hartman, singers and dancers; Hale Norcross and company, a fun maker from the Golden West, will offer "Love in the Suburbs," while Fitch Cooper, the musical ruler, and Lea Durbyelle, shadowgraphist, will complete the bill.

MR. AND MRS. HUFF FOR VAUDEVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Huff (Fritz Von Busing), who are playing leading roles in "The Merry Countess" at the Casino, will take a dip into vaudeville at the end of the season. Not only are they splendid singers (he is a tenor and she mezzo-soprano), but they can also act.

ELSIE LANDER TO APPEAR SHORTLY.

Elsie Lander is busy making preparations for her big vaudeville production, in which she will shortly make her appearance. The act will be one of the most expensive in vaudeville, the scenery and costumes alone reaching far in the four figures.

PREMIER THEATRE, IN FALL RIVER, BURNS.

A REVELATION IN SHOW BUSINESS

A new phenomenal sensation has created more talk in one night in New York than any song published in recent years. The chorus of which is

"AND JOHNNY GOES, TOO"

CHORUS—
In the morning I go for a drive in the park
And Johnny goes, too, Johnny goes, too,
In the afternoon I go for a lark
And Johnny goes, too, Johnny goes, too,
In the evening we go to some nice picture show
And we don't get home till the lights all burn low,
Then straight to my trundle bed I go
And Johnny goes, too, and Johnny goes to his home across the way.

Get the finish! The music is great. If you possess any intelligence at all you cannot help but see the possibilities of this novelty sensation. Male and double versions and orchestrations in seven keys now ready of this wonderful song

POSTPONES TRIP TO HOLY LAND.

For several months K. G. Barkoot, proprietor, and I. Banyaker, traffic manager of the Barkoot World's Greatest Shows, had contemplated making a trip to the Holy Land, and were soon to sail. They made reservations on the Cunard liner, Adriatic, which they have been compelled to cancel, owing to the war now raging in the Balkans, and their tour has been postponed.

COL. LEW NICHOLS IN TEXAS.

The Greater Nichols-Freed Combined Shows played the streets of Sherman, Tex., last week, under the auspices of the Sherman Civic Club. The aggregation expects to stay out all winter and tour the Southern portion of Texas. Col. Lew Nichols is well and favorably known in the Lone Star State.

ADAMS WINTERS IN ATHENS.

The Adams Exposition Shows closed a season of thirty-six weeks at Athens, Ga., Saturday, Nov. 30, where the paraphernalia has been placed in winter quarters. Manager Otis L. Adams intends to secure a number of new and novel features for 1913, and several of this season's attractions have already been signed.

MAKING READY IN ST. LOUIS.

The Great Sutton Shows closed the season at Forrest City, Ark., Nov. 17, and are now in winter quarters at St. Louis, where preparations will be made for the coming season, to open early in the Spring.

WORTHAM & ALLEN CLOSE.

The Wortham & Allen Shows enjoyed a successful engagement at the Southwestern Texas State fair, at Beaumont, last week, where they closed the season Saturday, Nov. 30.

SMITH and CAMPBELL successfully broke in their act last week in Pennsylvania. They will be seen in New York shortly.

Three important theatrical transfers were recorded week ending Nov. 23, that are of more than passing interest to the vaudeville branch of the business. Bert Levey, of the Bert Levey Circuit of vaudeville theatres, acquired by lease the new Deepenbrook Theatre of Sacramento, Cal., and signed a similar lease with Oliver Morosco for the Belasco Theatre in Los Angeles. Both these houses became additions to the "three a day" circuit that has become so popular on the Coast.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

Nov. 23.
A few days ago we were congratulating Joseph Arnold Cave on the attainment of his eighty-ninth birthday. He died on Wednesday, in the peaceful seclusion of the Clive House, which was dedicated to this quaint brotherhood by the late King Edward. Joe Cave became a public performer soon after he could use his feet. He used to sing a song called "I'm Ninety-five," in the old tea gardens. Later he sang and danced in the song and supper rooms that were the forerunners of the hall.

He claimed to be the first Englishman to own and play a banjo. He got the idea from an American circus visiting the Lyceum. He was one of the earliest minstrel performers. Eventually he became an actor, with a large repertoire, and a manager whose pantomimes were highly esteemed. He employed most of the best known artists of the Victorian age at one time and another. Of his play, "The Old Toll House," melodrama was most famous. He often came down the Strand. One day he went off home in a fine temper with the remark: "The he was 'd—d sick of meeting people who greeted him with surprise as though he ought to be dead."

Marie George has had a nervous breakdown and has had to relinquish her part in the touring extravaganza, "Merry Miss Mischief."

Sir Herbert Tree, who has been on a tour of the larger continental cities, is home again.

John Tiller's ballet, "Lovely Lucerne," will be the Christmas feature at the Paris Alhambra.

Mrs. J. B. Howard is dead. She was the widow of J. B. Howard, actor and manager, and helped him to build up the vast North Country theatrical business now known as Howard & Wyndham, Limited. She was a very old woman, and had long ceased her active business.

Arthur Boucher will stage another grand Guignol thriller, entitled "The Medium," at the London Palladium, on Monday.

S. Henry Crawford, a well known professor of the art of memory, comes to the Palace on Monday. This is said to be his first appearance on the vaudeville stage.

My fancy, the dancer, cables news of a successful opening with Rickards, in Australia.

At the time of writing they are in a terrible difficulty at Drury Lane. It is now certain that Dan Rolat, who was to have been featured in the pantomime, cannot appear, so a substitute must be found at the last minute. The name of Wilkie Bard is mentioned, but he declared a while ago that nothing would induce him to go into pantomime this year. Of course, George Graves was originally engaged, but Robert Courtneidge felt him to be indispensable to the success of "Princess Capha," at the Shaftesbury, and undertook to release Rolat and his wife, Florence Smithson, to Collins, for Drury Lane, if he might retain Graves. As Courtneidge is unable to deliver up Rolat, it is competent for Collins to reclaim Graves. Collins is a helpless prisoner to go just now, and Sydney Smith, the business manager of the theatre, is seriously ill of an internal disease. Collins has the production of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" on his hands, too.

George Ross, just home from South Africa, promises himself a holiday trip to the continent with his wife, Ella Grayson, before getting to work again.

Albert B. Bach, an opera singer of Hungarian birth, who used to support Patti in grand opera, died suddenly in Edinburgh, on Monday.

CANADA LOOKS GOOD.

In view of the fact that the Canadian Northwest is alluring territory, it is very probable that all the big carnivals will be fighting for time there the coming season. While competition is the life of trade, I would like to see the managers get together to the end that cut-throat tactics be eliminated and percentages kept down.

JOE CONNOLLY, who recently suffered the amputation of a finger, due to blood poisoning, is slowly recovering at the Wellington.

WANTED—The name of some talker who is not going to "Erisco" in 1915.

WANTED—Should a talker work on canvas? N. B.—For a good logical negative answer, which I can make my boss believe, I will buy one small dinner.

I know where there is "a good one" for the Fourth of July.

I AM making headquarters in Chicago this winter, and will be pleased to hear from carnival folk, acquainting me with their present movements and their plans for next season. Drop me a line in care of the Western Bureau of THE CLIPPER.

OBSERVATIONS BY JOE HEPP.

SEEN IN CHICAGO THIS WEEK.

Al W. Martin, Harry S. Noyes, Herbert A. Kline, Warren B. Irons, J. B. Warren, Ed. Carruthers, Harry J. Wright, R. J. Lewis, Spike Huggins, James Dunleavy, Mike Ziney, O. H. Hunt, Tom Nelson, W. Collicutt, Sol Wise, Curly Brown, Bud Menzell, Doc Miller, Al Steiner, Lew Morris, W. J. Hewitt, Beverly White, Harry Thibault, Jack Beach, George Donovan, Bert Earle, Baba Delgarian, Joe Connolly, Slim Havers, Doc Jones, F. C. McIntyre, Fred J. Worrell, Dave Jarrett, Joe Rosenthal and George Wyman.

LEW MORRIS is framing a store show on State Street, South of Congress. Location looks good, and if hustle and ability count for anything, Lew should get the money.

THE SAMAR TWINS have been booked for six weeks by Harry Williamson, at the Hippodrome, Detroit, Mich. R. J. Lewis, the owner and manager of the twins, leaves for England in the course of the next ten days.

HERBERT A. KLINE is making an indefinite stay here, signing up shows for next season, which will probably open in Chicago.

WRIGHT DEVELOPS NEW FIELD.

A new use for circus animals and "joys" during the winter season has been created by Harry Wright. About twenty cages of wild beasts and as many head of lead animals of the John Robinson Ten Big Shows, with five clowns, have been placed on exhibition by Mr. Wright in the toy department of The Fair, one of Chicago's leading department stores, for the holiday shopping season.

This circus annex would be termed a turnaway in the vernacular. A space about 14 feet wide and running the entire length of the South end of the store, which is a block long, has been railed off, and standing against the wall the store management, at considerable expense, has erected twenty massive cages, conveying the idea of animal wagons, wherein the animals are housed, and adjoining these are a line of pits for the lead stock. A liberal supply of sawdust and the pranks of the clowns give the real circus aspect. The place is decorated by a system of ventilation, and the entire project reflects great credit on the formidable Harry Wright. I am informed that stores in other metropolitan cities for this unique zoological exhibit, which is proving the greatest novelty advertising medium utilized in Chicago in many years to attract the multitudes to a mercantile establishment.

OUT OF TOWN NEWS

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Nixon (Thos. F. Kirk Jr., mgr.) "The Garden of Allah" began its second and last week Dec. 2, to a capacity audience. House was well sold out for the entire week.

ALVIN (John B. Reynolds, mgr.)—"The Prince of Pilsen," with Jess Dandy, week of 2. "Little Miss Brown" 9 and week. Business is capacity. LYCEUM (Cliff Wilson, mgr.)—"Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" week of 2. Dave Lewis, in "Don't Lie to Your Wife," 9 and week. Business is very good.

DUQUENNE (Dennis Harris, mgr.)—For week of 2, the Harry Davis Stock Co. present "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Business is great. GRAND (J. P. Harris, mgr.)—Bill for 2 and week: Edna Goodrich and company, Henry E. Dixey, Arthur Deacon, Wright and Dietrich, Musical Kings, and Florimonds, the Seebachs, and moving pictures. HARRIS (John P. Hill, mgr.)—Bill for week of 2: Treat's Seals, Whittier, Ince and company, Three Follies, La France and McNabb, the Halkings, Leonard Willard and company, Smith and Elio, the Happy Four, and Edwin Dupont. Business good.

Kenyon (Harry Polak, mgr.)—Bill for 2 and week: Douglas A. Flint and company, Three Harmonies, Four Hognas, Bean and Hamilton, Three Follies, and Glen and Olson. Business good. ROWLAND (Paul Jones, mgr.)—Moving pictures of the Pitt State football game week of 2. GAYETY (Henry Kurtzman, mgr.)—Mollie Williams Show week of 2. Golden Crook week of 9. FAMILY (John Lockin, mgr.)—Moving pictures, to capacity audiences.

CAMERAPHONE—Moving pictures, to big business. EMPIRE (A. A. McTigue, mgr.)—Vaudeville and pictures. CASINO (Howard Boyer, mgr.)—Vaudeville and pictures.

ALLAMBRA—Moving pictures, charged daily. NOTES—Burton Holmes' lecture, 3. Mary Hall and Dennis Harris, of the Davis Players, have volunteered their services for the T. M. A. benefit, to be given New Year's eve. John P. Hill, manager of the Harris, has become quite popular with his patrons. Jerry Collins, stage manager of the Harris, continues to be pronounced "the best ever" by all performers playing that house. His efforts to make them comfortable are greatly appreciated.

Scranton, Pa.—Lyceum (T. M. Gibbons, mgr.)—"Little Boy Blue," Dec. 3. "Officer 666" 4, 5, matinee 6. POLI (John H. Docking, mgr.)—Bill for week of 2: Edwards' Kid Kabaret, Jack Kennedy and company, Helen Trux, Kenney, Nobody and Platt, McMahon, Diamond and Clemence, Archie Oni and company, and "Visions D'Art." MANHATTAN—BUJOU DRAMAS, VICTORIA, HYPOBOMBS AND WONDERS report good returns, with moving pictures.

NOTES—The Orpheum Nettletole, in this city, has been bought by Mr. Holgate and Mr. Evans, two local business men. The house will be thoroughly renovated, and a first class entertainment will be offered upon its opening. The benefit performance held at the Lyceum Theatre, Nov. 29, for Mr. Williams, the local inventor, who has thought Scranton to be the most perfect and practicable aeroplanes in the country, was a big success. Mr. Williams has had a professional flyer in this city for the past two weeks, and several beautiful flights were made. The performance was given as an appreciation of the people of the city for Mr. Williams' generous attitude in showing his home town first the machine, which will undoubtedly bring him fame.

Williamsport, Pa.—Family (E. C. Johnson, mgr.) business continues big. Billed week of Dec. 2: Patton's diving gliders, Mrs. Bennett, Fred Sanford, Cole and Weaver, Two Harlots, Beattie, Evans, McAdam and his dog, Houston and Almaden, Biglow, Campbell and Hayden, and Jesse V. STILL THE GREATEST HIT IN SONG HISTORY

THAT MILLION MELLODY

Bigger now than ever. Great for any act or any singer

THE NOVELTY BALLAD OF THE SEASON

DADDY DID A WONDERFUL THING

CHORUS—
Daddy did a wonderful thing, a wonderful thing, a wonderful thing,
He told life's sweetest story on a bright summer's day,
To a simple girlie in an old fashioned way,
Daddy bought a wonderful ring, a plain little golden band,
And daddy's life was sunny and clear, daddy's love made clouds disappear,
When he picked out "my mother dear," my daddy did a wonderful thing.

THAT SYNCOPATED BOOGIE BOO

The greatest of all ghost songs. A wonderful double

I'LL BUILD A WALL AROUND LOVELAND

Only a beautiful ballad, that's all

TOBACCO HABIT CONQUERED IN 3 DAYS

I offer a genuine, guaranteed remedy for tobacco or snuff habit, in 12 hours. It is mild, pleasant, strengthening. Overcomes that peculiar nervousness and craving for cigarettes, cigars, pipe, chewing tobacco or snuff. One man in 10 can use tobacco without apparent injury; to the other 9 it is poisonous and seriously injures the health in several ways, causing such disorders as nervous dyspepsia, acidities, gas, belching, gnawing, or other uncomfortable sensation in stomach, constipation, headache, break eyes, loss of vigor, red spots on skin, throat irritation, asthma, bronchitis, heart failure, lung trouble, catarrh, melancholy, neurasthenia, impotency, loss of memory and will power, impure

OUT OF TOWN NEWS

CINCINNATI.

Thanksgiving brought good cheer to all thespian hearts, and the box office harvest was good all around. The new Olympic Players were warmly welcomed, and the impression prevails that there is a place for stock in the affections of local theatregoers.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE (John H. Havlin, mgr.)—Otis Skinner is coming Dec. 2, in Edward Knoblauch's "Kismet." Last week, "The Littlest Rebel" was responsible for floods of tears and much enthusiasm. Little "Boots" Worcester, as Virginia was the centre of Edmond Peepie's new war play-picture, and she carried off the honors of the week with William Farnum, and Jack Sharkey, starting them with her. The stars and stripes were in evidence in the house decorations, and every night the strains of "America" brought the audiences to their feet. Business big. Colan & Harris present "The Red Widow," 9, introducing Raymond Hitchcock and Flora Zabelle.

LYRIC (James E. Fennessy, mgr.)—Oliver Morrows offered the Hawaiian romance, "The Bird of Paradise," 1. "Everywoman," presented last week, by Henry W. Savage, repeated its great success of a year ago. Adele Blood was seen in the title role, and Eugene Ormonde replaced Cooper Cliff as Nobody. There was a new Truth in Kathleen Kerrigan, and Betty Marsden was fine as Conscience. Good business. Sam Bernard comes 8, in "All for the Ladies."

B. F. KEMRIS (Charles L. Doran, mgr.)—Julius Steger and company are top-liners, 1, in "Justice." Others: Mrs. Louis James and company, in "Holding a Husband"; Belle Baker, Charley Case, Wotpert and Pauline, Evans Lloyd and Alice Whitehouse, in "Just Vaudeville"; Barton and Florence Clark, in "In Sixty-five," and Sam Watson's Farmyard Circus. Pathe's Weekly.

WALNUT (W. F. Jackson, mgr.)—"Where the Trail Divides" is due 1, after a big week with Eugene Blair as Madame X. Audiences were large. Thurston comes 8.

EMPERESS (George F. Fish, mgr.)—Lawrence Crane, the Irish wizard heads the bill, 1. Others: J. K. Emmet and Viola Crane, in "A South Dakota Divorce." Morrissey and Hanlon, Mamie Fleming, De Vey and Dayton, and the Three Cleirs. Emperess comes pictures.

GERMAN (Ernest Otto Schmidt, mgr.)—"Die Furst Frankfurter" was repeated by special request, 1.

ORPHEUM (Isaac M. Martin, mgr.)—The Great Golden Troupe of Russian singers and dancers head the bill. Others: Billy Noble and Jeanne Brooks, Al Almont and Mlle. Dumont, Barnes and King, Alexander and Belting, Richards and Montrose, and the Mardo Trio, in "Tommy Atkins On Duty." Gaumont pictures.

CHARITABLE (Charles Dornier, mgr.)—The Olympic Players are to begin their second week, 1, by offering "The Charity Ball." The new stock company's premiere was "Arizona," and Adra Almale made her debut here in the role of Bonita, with Allen F. Holubar as Lieut. Denton; Winfield De Long as the villainous Hodgman; Eugene La Rose as Canby, Fred Hargraves in the comedy role of Dr. Fenton, and Harry Wilgus as Toway.

PEOPLE'S (James E. Fennessy, mgr.)—Teddy Simond's Auto Girls arrived, 1, after a week of the Pace Makers. The chorus was long on good looks. Margie Cadin and Mae Yule, with Lew Hilton, set a pretty hot pace. Bert Lewis, Bill Mossey and Harry Kelly helped along with good, catchy stuff, and shared in the success of the week. High Life in Burlesque arrives 8.

STANDARD (H. K. Hyndes, mgr.)—The Gaiety Girls are due 1. Alta Phelps was the pretty, stunning, magnetic star of Joe Fields' Winning Widows, who packed them in last week. Lou Powers and Sam Mical portrayed two Yiddish gentlemen of wealth. Edith Powers, Mae Rose, Lew Christy and Edward Kerr were others featured. The Ginger Girls come 8.

HEUCK'S OPERA HOUSE (James E. Day, mgr.)—Kris Kringle arrived early and gave away hundreds of presents at one of last week's shows. The Macdonette Trio was featured in the last bill. Motion pictures, too. Others: Burdell and Dandra, Harry Linwood and company, and Barber and Palmer, in "The Lady and the Cartoon." Ed. Long's Ponies, General and Colonel, are coming 1.

EMERY AUDITORIUM—The next concert of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra occur 6, 7, when Louis Persinger will be the soloist. Marcella Sembrich was heard in concert Thanksgiving night.

MUSIC HALL—The Chicago Grand Opera Company, in the one performance of "Alia" were warmly greeted from "aloft," but attendance below was meagre.

LYCEUM AUDITORIUM, FAMILY AND RYAN'S CENTURY, motion pictures and vaudeville.

NEWS NOTELETS. RALPH HARTLEY received a wire from Edward Knoblauch, announcing the author's coming to Cincinnati to "have a look" at his creation, "Kismet."

WHEN Maj. James M. Arnold, late C. S. A., and Captain William O. Johnson, U. S. A., clasped hands at the opening performance of "The Littlest Rebel" at the Grand Opera House, the whole house rang with applause. All the boxes were filled with officers of the Blue and the Gray, as guests. Manager John H. Havlin.

OLIVIA PETROVA's local premiere was successful. The Keith constituency made the young comedienne feel how welcome she was.

MELBOURNE McDOWELL, who was the star on the big occasion, past triumphs in which he shared with the late Fanny Davenport. In the sketch, "The Sheriff and the Widow," he was aided by Isabel Evenson.

ANOTHER memory of the past was revived at the Emperess, where Thomas Q. Seabrooke was well received for auld lang syne. His monologue was pronounced a corker.

NATALIE ZUBER, daughter of Charles H. Zuber, former dramatic editor of The Times-Star, was one of the little folks in the opera, "The Feast of the Red Corn," at the Grand Opera House, Nov. 29.

FLORENCE HINKLE, Alma Beck, Evan Williams, and Joseph Whitehall, will be the soloists at the May Festival Association's presentation of "The Messiah," at Music Hall, Christmas night.

THE Cincinnati Chamber Music Quartet will give a series of concerts at the Sinton Assembly Hall, commencing Monday, Dec. 10. The quartet, with Dr. Ernst Kunwald, soloist.

MAURICE WOLFSON has succeeded C. L. Hamilton as house manager of the Orpheum. The latter has returned to Chicago.

A new panel of mirrors is an "added attraction" in the rear of the Orpheum.

THE United Singers of Cincinnati almost filled Music Hall to capacity at the eleventh annual song recital. There was a chorus of two hundred male voices, directed by Louis Elrgott.

THE Cincinnati Women's Club is to give a reception to Dr. and Mrs. Ernst Kunwald Dec. 14.

DRUID DOYLE assumed the role of "Everywoman," in a few performances, relieving Miss Blood, who needed rest.

GUS EDWARDS and his company dropped in unexpectedly at B. F. Keith's while "passing through" on Sunday, and he captured the house by putting on an impromptu stunt from the boxes, which were occupied by his "Kiddies."

THE Mystic Shrine of Syrian Temple had one of the biggest theatre parties of the season. They wound up a ceremonial session by marching to the Emperess. Noble George F. Fish turned over the entire house to them, and they about filled it.

A SPECIAL Friday matinee was given by Eugene Blair, in "Madame X."

HAMILTON, O.—Smith's (Tom A. Smith, mgr.) Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, with Mrs. Harry Crume as vocal soloist, Dec. 11.

GRAND (John E. McCarthy, mgr.)—Photoplay. Brou (A. Hammerle, mgr.)—Bill for 2 and week: Joe Mersel, Emma Murray, Hughes and Knight, Stella Clark and Ona Walton, Wm. Harvey and pictures.

EAGLE, motion picture theatres, report good returns.

MANSFIELD, O.—Memorial (Crouse & Kunz, mgrs.)—"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" Nov. 22, had excellent business. "The Girl of My Dreams" Dec. 12, "The Shepherd of the Hills" 27.

ABRAS, STAR, GRAND, ALVIN, and ROYAL, motion picture houses, report good business.

Springfield, O.—Fairbanks' (O. J. Becker, mgr.) Yiddish Opera Co. Dec. 2. "The Travelling Salesman" 3, Richard Carle and Hattie Williams, in "The Girl from Montmartre," 6; "Alma, Where Do You Live?" 7.

New Sun (Sun Amusement Co., mgrs.)—Bill for week of 2: Lads and Lassies, Ross and Stewart, and the Weber Family.

Newark, N. J.—Newark (Geo. W. Robbins, mgr.) "A Scrape of the Pen" with the Scottish Players, week of Dec. 2. "The Woman" 9 and week.

SHUBERT (Lee Ottolengui, mgr.)—"Mutt and Jeff" week of 2. "Ready Money" 9 and week.

PROCTOR'S (E. O. Stuart, mgr.)—Bill for week of 2: Hughie Jennings and Ben Smith, Walter Sayton Trio, Fitch Cooper, Josephine Brown and company, Los Durbeyle, Four Regals, John T. Murray and Alexander and Scott.

ORPHEUM (M. S. Schaeffer, mgr.)—"Madame X," by the Corso Dayton Company, week of 2, and as the demand for this play is great it may continue week of 9.

JACOBY (Geo. W. Jacobs, mgr.)—The Jacobs Stock Company, week of 2, in "The James Boys in Missouri." "The Chinatown Trunk Mystery" week of 9.

GATLEY (Leon Evans, mgr.)—Clark's Runaway Girls, with Burke Bros., Margarette Clemens, Joe Opp, Carrie Bastard, Violet Kilo and Tommy Gulien, week of 2. Al. Beevers, Show 9 and week.

ORPHEUM (M. L. Semon, mgr.)—Bill week of 25 included: Ower and Ower, Harrison-West Trio, Onalp, Baker Troupe, McNish and McNish, and motion pictures.

Notes.—W. E. Coleman, manager of the Princess, is to assume the management of the new house now under construction by H. M. Newsome, owner of the Princess, Bonta and Amuse-ment theatres. Mr. Coleman is one of the most popular managers in this city, and the announcement that he is to manage this beautiful house is an assurance of its success.

Doc. Baker, a great Birmingham favorite, is to return to the Amuse-ment next week for an engagement of two weeks.

Mr. Baker is one of the finest character singers ever heard in this city. It is a noticeable fact that every motion picture machine in this city is being operated by a member of the I. A. T. S. E. This organization, as well as the T. M. A.'s, is very strong here, and the personnel of both memberships is splendid.

Denver, Col.—Broadway (Peter McCourt, mgr.)—"The Rose Maid" 2 and week.

ORPHEUM (A. C. Carson mgr.)—Bill for 2 and week Mack and Rambau, Jack Wilson Trio, Ballet Classique, Gautier's Toy Shop, Mary Elizabeth, Charles Olcott, Lockhart and Leddy, and Pathe's Weekly.

STAGE CHILDREN'S CHRISTMAS.

The Stage Children's Christmas Fund will continue the work begun in 1877 by Tony Pastor, Mrs. E. L. Fernandez and "Aunt Louise" Eldridge, and give a Christmas festival and tree at the Criterion and New York theatres on Sunday night, Dec. 29. William Harris will be the Santa Claus as usual, and the kiddies will have the time of their lives.

The entertainment promises to be more elaborate than ever. The children from Maude Adams' Co., the Little Theatre, the Century Theatre, "The Lady of the Slipper" Co. and "The Rose Maid" Co. will take part, and a wonderful all-star cast of Gilbert & Sullivan's "Patience" is promised, which will outshine the grown-ups.

Mr. Harris will be assisted by the following committee: Bijou Fernandez, Mrs. Anna V. Morrison, Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin, Mrs. Ruth Litt, Misses Grace Tilkens, Agnate, Kenyon Bishop, Minette Barrett, Nellie Reville, Sophia Irene Loeb, Helen Tenbrook, Florence Nash, Georgia O'Ramey, Margaret Green, Maude Knowlton, Elizabeth Ennis, Belle Daube, Mrs. Mary James and Mrs. Leone Ross.

AMANN AND HARTLEY WIN.

Amann and Hartley, on Dec. 4, in New York City, were awarded a verdict for $1,425 by Judge Blanchard for breach of contract. The decision was against the Pantages Circuit.

MONTANA COWBOY BAND.

Heine Houle, leader; Ollie Riggs, cornet; Speaker Cannon, cornet; Jake Zimmerman, horn; Geo. Dittman, horn; Bill Erics, trombone; Jack Moulton, baritone; Bill Houle, baritone-saxophone; Dick Bailey, bass-saxophone; Windy Warner, BB-flat bass; Dutch Erics, snare drum; Art Wright, bass drum.

"BLACKBIRDS" PRODUCED.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 5.—Laura Hope Crews and H. B. Warner made their first appearance as co-stars here to-night, in Henry Miller's production of "Blackbirds," at the Apollo Theatre. The new play, written by Harry James Smith, author of "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," was witnessed by a capacity audience.

"Blackbirds" is a romantic comedy, written in a vein of whimsical humor. It tells an interesting story of modern life in New York and the Middle West. The two central characters of the play provide roles of equal importance for Miss Crews and Mr. Warner. Miss Crews is seen in the character of a woman of foreign birth who is visiting a rich American family. It is a role that enables Miss Crews to show to advantage her exceptional talent as a comedienne. Mr. Warner portrays a debonaire young Englishman who lives by his wits. The romance of the story involves the characters portrayed by Miss Crews and Mr. Warner. The excellent acting of the co-stars is backed by brilliant support from an evenly balanced company, including Sydney Valentine, Mme. Mathilde Cottrelly, James Bradbury, Jean Galbraith, Bertha Welby, Ethel Winthrop, E. Y. Backus and Robert Young.

"Blackbirds" goes from here to Washington and Baltimore. Later in the season it will be seen in New York.

"CIRCUS WEEK."

The "Circus Week" bill was a big hic at the De Kalb, Brooklyn, last week. The same bill, nearly intact, will play the other houses of the circuit.

HILLIARD AT THE CRITERION.

Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger will present Robert Hilliard at the Criterion Theatre on Christmas Eve, Tuesday, Dec. 24, in the new play, "The Argyle Case." Harriet Ford and Harvey J. O'Higgins wrote "The Argyle Case," in co-operation with William J. Burns, the detective. The play contains no reference to politics, graft or industrial conditions, nor is any attempt made to portray Mr. Burns upon the stage. His methods, however, are employed in solving a stage mystery. Mr. Hilliard will portray Asche Kayton, an up-to-date type of American detective. The finger print process of identification and the practical workings of the dictograph are vividly illustrated in the play. Klaw & Erlanger have provided a picturesque production. The supporting company includes: Alphonse Ethier, Bertram Marburg, Joseph Tuohy, Calvin Thomas, John J. Pearson, W. F. Clark, Bert Walker, W. H. Gilmore, Fred Russell, Robert Newcombe, Selene Johnson, Stella Archer, Agnes Everett, Elizabeth Eyre, Wanda Carlyle and others.

CINCINNATI FANS TO HONOR JOHN MCGRAW.

Cincinnati lovers of baseball are to give a big theatre party at R. F. Keith's, to be followed by an after-theatre supper at the Hotel Hardin, in compliment to John J. McGraw, who will be the headliner at that amusement house Dec. 15.

LAST WEEK OF "ANATOL."

Norman McKinnel, the English actor whom Winthrop Ames is bringing to this country, will arrive in New York Dec. 18, and will begin a limited engagement at the Little Theatre, Monday night, Dec. 23, in Giltha Sowerby's powerful drama, "Rutherford and Son." Mr. McKinnel will bring his London company with him. Included in it are the three actresses who were in the first performance of "Rutherford and Son," in London and who did brilliant acting, second only to that of Mr. McKinnel—Edyth Olive, Agnes Thomas and Thyra Norman. Four other well known English actors will appear in the play—J. V. Bryant, L. G. Carroll, J. Cooke Beresford and Marie Ault.

In order to make way for Norman McKinnel and "Rutherford and Son," Arthur Schnitzler's satiric comedy, "The Affairs of Anatol," now current at the Little Theatre, will end its run on Saturday night, Dec. 14, and will go to Chicago, where it will begin a limited engagement at the Fine Arts Theatre on Tuesday night, Dec. 17. The entire "Anatol" company (including John Barrymore, Gail Kane, Doris Keane, Katherine Emmet, Isabelle Lee and Oswald Yorke), with the one exception of Marguerite Clark, who is featured in Mr. Ames' afternoon production of the play for children, "Snow White," will leave for Chicago Sunday night, Dec. 15.

WOODY COOK IN NEED.

While Mr. Cook was with the Barkoot Carnival Co. as high diver, the guy line broke, letting him fall. He was picked up for dead. His skull was fractured, his neck and spine were dislocated, and he received internal injuries from which he is almost a cripple. His wife is in Chicago, at 604 North Clark Street. He is unable to send for her as he hasn't a penny.

Any financial assistance sent to him will be greatly appreciated.

His address is 264 Albany Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

With the parting greetings of a host of new and old friends ringing in his ears, Bud Atkinson, the well known Australian showman, left San Francisco on Tuesday, Nov. 19, for Sydney, Australia, taking with him the talent he had gathered in America for his Wild West and circus. Atkinson and his party sailed on the Sonoma, and before his departure the genial showman was the guest of many of the professional people in the great Western city.

On the night before the sailing of the Sonoma, Atkinson, together with Sam C. Haller, George Lowery, Tom Ryan, Tom Meyers, Lawrence Hanely and their wives (excepting Haller, and you all know he is still single), held a soiree at the Golden Gate Avenue home of Lowery, who is now retired from the show world and taking life easy.

The send-off given Atkinson was a most cordial one. During his stay in America the Australian has made a host of friends, who wish him well in his venture. The crowd was at the boat, and Bud found himself departing for home, but leaving with regret his many new friends.

Bud took with him Colonel Lavelle, who is the prototype of Buffalo Bill; Bert Morphy, the man who "sings to beat the band," a number of full-blooded Sioux Indians, and several regular cowboys, the list of whose names was published in a recent issue of THE CLIPPER. The company will spend two years in the Antipodes, touring Australia, New Zealand, New South Wales and other places.

SAM C. HALLER,

The last person to wish Bud Atkinson and his party bon voyage, on their departure for Australia.

"THE HOUSE OF GLASS."

Sanger & Jordan closed contracts Dec. 4 between Oliver Morosco, of New York and Los Angeles, and Max Marcin, for a new play, entitled "The House of Glass." The play will be first produced at the Morosco Theatre, Los Angeles, in January, after which it will come to Broadway. Mr. Marcin, who wrote the new drama, is a well known magazine writer and author of "Are You My Wife?" which Cohan & Harris will produce this season.

KOLKER WILL PRODUCE PLAYS.

Henry Kolker and the players now appearing in "Our Wives" will, during the runs in Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston, add a repertoire of new plays and return to New York with them in the Spring, under the direction of Jos. M. Gaites. They will add to "Our Wives" a problem drama, a tragedy and a romantic play. The first will be "The Man," a drama of New York life written by Mr. Kolker, which will be presented at a special matinee at the Cort Theatre, Chicago, next month.
